DeMaria, Adrien lead elected officials in campaign dollars on hand

By Seth Daniel

Two elected officials in Everett move into the municipal campaign season this year with significant cash on hand despite 2020 being a year where fundraising was next to impossible and traditional fundraisers were not held beyond March 13 of last year.

Campaign Finance Reports from all of 2020 were due at the state Office of Campaign and Political Finance (OCPF) or at the Everett City Clerk's office on Jan. 20. Most all of them have been turned in, according to Clerk Sergio Cornelio, and the Independent has secured all reports that were available this Monday.

The two biggest campaign chests in Everett come from Mayor Carlo DeMaria, who carries over more than $100,000 from early 2020, and a surprising surge from Councilor Adrien - who raised

Everett teacher vaccine program scuttled by Gov. Baker

By Seth Daniel

Optimism reigned just two weeks ago as Everett sought out to be the first community in the state to prioritize its educators for the COVID-19 vaccine in order to get kids back in school, but those hopes have all been squashed this week as Gov. Charlie Baker refused to provide the vaccine to the City as teachers are not yet allowed to be vaccinated in Phase 2 of his

Now, Supt. Priya Tahiliani said the clock is ticking on getting kids back to school, and on Monday she suggested it might be time to consider going back to school without a vaccine - such as state education officials have suggested. Coming Home Everett High hires Rob DiLoreto

as new head football coach

Staff Report

The newest chapter in the history of Everett High School's football program was written this week, as a longtime educator with unbreakable bonds to the city was appointed head coach of the Crimson Tide.

Robert DiLoreto, an Everett High School (EHS) graduate well-versed in the city's long and proud football tradition, was named head coach on Wednesday afternoon. He will lead a program that has been fielding championship teams for generations, including 12 Super Bowl titles and more than 260 victories over the past 19 seasons. "Words and emotions can't explain how I feel," he said. "I'm euphoric. This is literally a dream come true for me. I am honored and humbled, and I can't wait to get started and do the best job I can for our kids." EHS Athletic Director Tammy Turner said the decision to offer the position to DiLoreto centered around basic but crucial considerations. "His coaching pedigree is clear. But what struck me most is how genuine and passionate he is about our school, our football program, and our city," she said. "It is clear that he will put our players' interests above all else, in every decision he makes.'

DiLoreto, a "proud product" of Everett's Village neighborhood, attended the Adams School and Parlin Junior High before graduating from Everett High in 1984. He has vast experience as a head coach and an assistant, including a two-year stint as an offensive coach for the Crimson Tide in 2017 and 2018.

DiLoreto, who holds a bachelor's degree from Notre Dame and a master's degree in secondary education from Salem State, has been a teacher and an administrator at Arlington High since 1996. He has been a social studies teacher, Director of Athletics (2000-2006), and Dean of Students (2006-present). He is the father of four children - Robert, Kasey, Corey, Riley, and his beloved deceased son, Jason.

"We are hiring a firstrate teacher and coach who is equipped to handle all aspects of this position, from on-field performance to mentoring and community relations," said Superintendent of Schools

CHA Hospital staff nearly fully vaccinated, cases sloping downward

By Seth Daniel

The good news on the hospitalization front from CHA Everett is that not much has changed in either direction, but the hospital is handling the load according to plan and well on their way to having the staff fully vaccinated for COVID-19.

The numbers of those testing positive in the hospital's catchment area seems to be on the decline, and the hospital is reporting that there are cases in has gotten out of control.

large numbers, but nothing "The good news is there isn't too much different from two weeks ago, but that also might be the bad news," said Dr. Melisa Lai-Becker, chief of the Emergency Department at CHA Everett. "We're getting back into the rhythm of care and coordination. Overall, in the last two weeks, while we may have fewer overall admitted patients and more available the hospital, it's also been a time of figuring out the care of patients who are beyond the acute phase and still need eyes on them."

That has meant some patients are now being sent to field hospitals in Lowell and Worcester for the longer recovery times, but at the same time there isn't a panic going on.

"There's nothing about it that is frantic, said. "Everything she has been good, calm and measured...Rather than complacency, the hospital has enforced our plan. All that planning from last summer and fall that's we see in action here now... We're happy to press on and there is light at the end of the tunnel."

Statistics show that in the catchment area of the hospital (Malden, Chelsea, Revere, Everett, Winthrop, Cambridge and Somerville), there was a peak of cases in the week

Rob DiLoreto ready to carry on Crimson Tide's proud sports tradition

Rob DiLoreto played youth baseball, Pop Warner football, Immaculate Conception CYO basketball and Everett High School baseball and football, so he knows first hand about the great tradition of Everett

"Obviously I'm filled with pride and humility right now and just so honored to be selected to be the next head football coach at Everett," DiLoreto said Monday.

DiLoreto, 54, is a 1984 graduate of Everett High School. He played one season as a quarterback and safety for the 1983 Crimson Tide for Head Coach Andy Guarino. DiLoreto went on to graduate from the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Indiana. He also holds a Master's degree in Secondary Education from Salem State University. He is currently the dean of students

Among his football coaching achievements, DiLoreto led Pope John XXIII to a victory in the Super Bowl in 1998. He coached his sons, Robert and Cory, at Reading High School. Cory, a two-time

Many people knew Robert Rob's father, DiLoreto, the legendary photographer and widely admired owner of Nordel Photography Studio in Everett for many years.

On Wednesday, Rob DiLoreto was scheduled to meet with his Everett High football players for the first time via Zoom. "We're all so excited to get going," said the new coach.

DiLoreto has hired Everett physical education teacher Christopher Miller as the varsity assistant head coach. He hopes to keep the current coaching staff in place.

Everett's season opener is slated for April 16 against Revere, who is the defending Northeastern Conference champion and coming off a 10-1 season that ended in a loss to eventual Super Bowl champion Melrose in the North Sectional finals.

Revere Coach Lou Cicatelli has several players returning to his program.

"I know Coach Cicatelli very well, he's a dear friend," said DiLoreto. "I know they're very well coached and I followed them right through their playoff run and I was rooting for them all the way."

If attendance is not limited due to the coronavirus, Revere officials expect one of the largest crowds in years for the game in mid-

"There will be a tremendous build-up for that game in both communities," said Revere Director of Athletics Frank Shea.

DiLoreto said his parents, Robert and Nancy DiLoreo, would have been proud to see their son take the helm of the Everett High football program.

"Everett is in my roots - I'm a proud man from the Village section of Everett," said DiLoreto. "The DiLoreto family has owned property in the Village since the early 1900s. That's over 100 years. I'm just so proud of my heritage. And I know my father, who worked really hard and had a small business in the city of Everett for over 50 years - I think he's really gleaming with pride from Heaven right now. of Jan. 11, with 3,100 cases. Now, however, the same area is reporting 2,500 positive cases. At CHA, since March, they have tested 100,000 people, and about 8,000 have been positive.

Now, a new precaution has been implemented on the testing front to make sure the hospital if monitored for COVID-19. Now, every four days one is in the hospital or Emergency Department, they are tested for their COVID status.

• VACCINATIONS FOR STAFF MOVING WELL

Though there have been glitches and line-jumping at some institutions, that is not the case at CHA Everett when it comes to vaccinating the staff. Dr. Lai-Becker reported that about 75 percent of the CHA staff has received the first dose of the vaccine and 25 percent have received both doses. By the end of the month, they expect to be able to vaccinate everyone who wants to be vaccinated on the staff.

The hospital and its networks are now in the planning stages for figuring out how to vaccinate all of their patients when the time comes for that.

"CHA as a whole is working on how we can vaccinate all 140,000 of our patients, those who come to CHA for their Primary Care. We are prepping now. It's a very intentional rollout due to the face we're in the phase where the two part vaccine is being used...A lot of it is that every shot you get today is a shot you'll need to get in three weeks. That's an incredible amount of logistics, and calculations and back to the old conversation about the supply chain.'

At CHA Everett, the vaccine rollout will be through the primary care doctors, with major assists from all others like the Emergency Department. With testing to administer and follow-ups to book, many primary care doctors will need a tremendous amount of help. She said they will likely be using visits to the hospital, the health care centers, pop-up vaccination sites and maybe a larger site that isn't Fenway Park. She said many are at the point where there's a lot of familiarity with the plan and they simply want to let it loose.

"We know where the bottlenecks are," she said. "Let's just get everybody vaccinated. We're at a point where we could get everyone vaccinated within a timeframe and thinking less about trying to prioritize the elderly or essential workers."

She said she believes the area is near an inflection point where it will simply be about anyone getting vaccinated can get vaccinated.

"I would think we'll hit this inflection point in the next two to four weeks where they start giving the vaccine to every person no matter who they are - get vaccinated if you want it because that's just one more and it gets us closer to herd immunity."

•NO NEED TO HORD

About one week ago, a momentous occasion took place at the hospital.

Everyone had enough N95 mask.

Dr. Lai-Becker said for the first time since the pandemic broke out, they do not need to recycle or use the viral decay system they have been doing so long to preserve their mask supply.

Instead, they can go to the supply area and get five masks to use for five shifts. Before, they used every mask five to eight times and then got rid of it. Now, they can use one mask per shift, and then get rid of it, while still having confidence they will have more waiting for them the next shift.

"I never thought that would ever happen," she said with a laugh. "When that news came out, you can imagine people began to ask if it was wrong to hoard masks. And did they even need to?"

his words, he is 'All In' on leading our football team and I look forward to watching him support the athletic, academic, and social development of our students."

School Committee member Thomas Abruzzese echoed the Superintendent's sentiments, saying, "I have known Rob for most of his life and he is a terrific man and a terrific coach. I can assure you that he is highly respected by his players, opponents, and officials. This is a great day for Everett football and our entire community!"

DiLoreto's coaching career began at a level that is so important to Everett's football prowess — Pop Warner. He coached in the Everett Huskies Pop Warner program for six years before embarking on his high school career. In 1994, he took Pope John's program from the brink of extinction to the 1998 Division VI Super Bowl championship. That year, he was named a Coach of the Year by the Boston

Mayor DeMaria's Campaign Committee said it was a slow year for fundraising because asking for money in times such as this didn't seem appropriate, and the mayor was focused on the crisis.

However, Al and Matt Lattanzi, of the Committee, confirmed that the mayor is in fact running for re-election in 2021 and will be officially announcing and kicking off the campaign in the coming months. The mayor did report some receipts, mostly in the early part of the year, and totaling $19,921 with 19 of his 66 contributors coming from Everett. Most of his donations were logged in early January 2020 for a fundraiser held at the end of 2019. He logged only a few expenditures, and most of them were for donations, and a large spend on Christmas cards in December.

Meanwhile, the busiest candidate on the Council was Gerly Adrien, who showed strong fund-raising ability despite COVID difficulties – raising a very noticeable $64,907 in 2020.

She began the year with $990 in the bank and raised money at some fundraisers before the pandemic hit, but then also raised a good deal of her financing through online fundraisers and online donations.

Adrien logged 1,130 donors to her campaign in 2020, and 206 of them were from Everett. Of the total raised, $27,154 came in donations that were $50 or under. A majority of the donations not from Everett came from the Greater Boston area, with two Boston mayoral candidates donating to her Councilors Annissa Essaibi George and Andrea Adrien said the fundraising effort showed Everett residents believe in her, and supporters statewide also believe in her.

"I'm very proud of all the Everett support I have," she said. "I am also grateful for all the support and elected officials across the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It shows that not only Everett wants me re-elected, but also everyone in Massachusetts believes in my vision and the work I have done to help Everett progress. A comprehensive approach to senior housing in Everett Construction is officially underway in Everett for the newest development project from The Neighborhood Developers (TND).

A non-profit community development corporation based in Chelsea, TND is known for the award-winning Box District and other community development projects in Chelsea and Revere. There are two complementary construction projects underway at the former St. Therese Parish location on Broadway. The larger of the two includes 77 affordable rental apartments for seniors aged 62 and older and a 4,000 square foot health care facility. The second component of the project is the construction of six townhouses on Gledhill Avenue that will provide three-bedroom homes for sale at below-market prices. In addition to announcing the start of construction, TND is proud to officially partner with the East Boston Neighborhood Health Center (EBNHC) at St. Therese. At the former Parish site, TND will create a community asset featuring public green space and a new health center on the ground floor to serve the building's elderly residents and members of the broader community. The health center will also include services offered by the Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE), operated by EBNHC, which provide comprehensive care and support for clinically complex seniors, including preventive care, specialist visits, prescription drug coverage, and health and wellness programs. PACE is the ideal solution for those who want an alternative to nursing home care for the right combination of medical, social, recreation, rehabilitation, home care, and other services. "The partnership between The Neighborhood Developers, East Boston Neighborhood Health Center and the City of Everett will bring much needed affordable housing opportunities to one of the City's most vulnerable populations, our senior citizens," said Mayor Carlo DeMaria. "Having a healthcare facility constructed in conjunction with the housing will give residents the chance to receive care in a stateof-the-art facility with a well-respected provider. I look forward to breaking ground on this project and adding additional affordable housing to the City's inventory."

center in Massachusetts, and among the largest community health centers in the country. Neighborhood PACE, operated by EBNHC, is part of the national Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly network that provides comprehensive care and support for adults 55 and older with specific needs and preferences. This collaboration between an affordable housing developer and health

impacts of COVID-19 on Everett and surrounding communities. "Expanded access to needed health care services for seniors is critical as we fight our way out of this pandemic and recover from its impacts to our lives and health," says Manny Lopes, CEO and President of EBNHC. The coronavirus has been particularly dangerous for people living in congregant housing, including seniors. TND, however, saw much lower COVID-19 infection rates for people residing in its properties as compared to those in the surrounding community. "In 2020, COVID-19 painfully highlighted the connection between health and housing; at St. Therese people will have access to healthy, affordable housing and convenient medical services and wellness programs at the same time" says Rafael Mares, Executive Director of TND. The PACE model to be offered at St. Therese will provide seniors the support and resources to safely continue living in the communities they are rooted in.

Demolition of building and subsequent construction began October. However, some of the roof tiles were salvaged pre-demolition and reserved for another Everett-based congregation, St. Anthony's church. Other architectural elements were also saved to be incorporated into the new property design. The name of the historical parish, St. Therese, has been kept to uphold the rich history of this landmark. The construction is managed by local contractor, Bald Hill Builders.

Construction is scheduled to continue throughout 2021 and be completed in May 2022. This will be TND's first affordable housing project in Everett. After decades of work in Chelsea, as well as Revere in the last few years, the organization is excited and prepared to join the Everett community. This project is a key piece of a multi-year plan to further build relationships and explore partnerships in Everett with municipal, civic, business and community-based organizations.

destroyed by fire in 1947. Source: Everett Public Libraries

(The following is a weekly feature in the Independent based on the City's 2018 Historic Property Survey done to note the many little-known historically significant properties within the city.)

ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

Constructed in 1949, the former Elks Home is a flat-roofed building with a brick veneer and a classically-inspired two-story "Temple" front superimposed on its Church Street façade. Five two-story brick pilasters articulate the façade and support a full pediment which originally had a central medallion. The first floor of the façade is fronted by a single-story, four-bay portico supported by squat, fluted columns. Underneath the porch there is a double-doored entrance in the third bay; it appears that there was a second entrance in the adjacent bay but this has been filled with brick. The two end bays of the first floor façade contain double-hung 8/8 windows. On the second floor, the original large arched, multi-light windows have been removed and the openings filled. One of the openings has metal double doors which open onto the porch roof which is enclosed by a simple balustrade with square posts and stick balusters that replaces the original railing that had bulbous balusters. The building is setback from the street with a concrete sidewalk leading to the front, chain link fence. In the 1950s the front lawn had carefully clipped hedges. A sidewalk to the south of the building leads down to a basement level, below the street level. Many of the rectangular window openings on the lesser elevations were blocked and covered with a brick veneer in 1981.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE

On July 25, 1901 the Everett Lodge #642 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was granted a charter. In 1905 the lodge purchased the former Glendon Clubhouse which was built on this site in 1893 according to plans by architect J.C. Spofford (Book 3150, Page 450). On December 19, 1947 the original building was damaged by fire and it was torn down in November 1948. The pouring of the foundation for a new lodge began on April 5, 1949 and the steel was erected on May 27th. The cornerstone was laid on June 14, 1949. The contractor was the Concrete Construction Company and the cost of the building was $150,000. On November 11, 1954 the Lodge had a party to celebrate the burning of their mortgage. In the latter half of the 20th century, the Everett Lodge was very active and involved in the community. It was reportedly so busy that it was nicknamed "the beehive of Elkdom". Various alterations were made to the building in the years that followed. In 1953 the walls were sheathed of $18,000 and an addition was constructed. The windows in the Lodge Room were changed in 1977. In 1979 after a fire, walls were repaneled, new carpeting and tile floors were installed as were suspended ceilings. Finally, in 1981, a total of 22 window openings were blocked up and an outer brick veneer was installed at these former openings.

On July 25, 2001, Everett Lodge #642 celebrated its 100th Anniversary as a lodge. In 2003 the Lodge established a Building Committee to investigate the Lodge's options for renovation or relocation. In November 2005 Everett Lodge #642 sold the building at 42 Church Street to Ottavio Passanisi and leased back the main floor as a temporary home while they searched for a new location. City of Everett COVID-19 vaccine for seniors

Mayor Carlo DeMaria is pleased to announce that the City of Everett Health Department in partnership with Cataldo EMS will be administering COVID-19 vaccines on Saturday, February 6, and Sunday, February 7, between 9am-5pm at Pope John XXIII High School located at 888 Broadway. Vaccines will be distrib-flanked by small lawn areas that are enclosed with uted to Everett residents only ages 75 and over. "The City will be administering vaccines to our seniors to protect them from COVID-19," said Mayor DeMaria. "I want to ensure that all seniors will have access to the vaccine during these challenging times. Protecting our most vulnerable population is our highest priority as we enter the next phase of distribution. I will continue to advocate until our entire community has received the vaccine."

Seniors are required to make an appointment to receive the vaccine. Appointments can be made online

nizations.org/ beginning on Monday, February 1 at

https://www.maimmu-

8 a.m. For any questions, please contact 3-1-1. Upon arrival at the vaccination site, seniors are required to provide proof of age with any government-issued ID. Because Everett is considered a high impact community, the City is receiving 400 doses of the vaccine per week. Distribution of the vaccine is based upon availability from the Commonwealth. Vaccines will be administered in the school's cafeteria on the first floor. Seniors are asked to enter through the rear entrance that can be accessed from Cameron Street. After the vaccine is administered, an appointment will be made for the second dose. It is important for those who get tested to wear a mask, use hand sanitizer, and practice social distancing.

Seniors who make an appointment to receive a vaccine are eligible for free transportation services through Mystic Valley Elder Services (MVES). To make an appointment for a ride, please contact MVES

MINIMUM WAGE SHOULD BE AT $15.00

In 1971, the minimum wage across the United States, as mandated by federal law, was $1.60.

Today, the federal minimum stands at $7.25.

One might look at those two numbers and think that because the minimum wage has increased by more than four-fold in the past 50 years, America's lowest-paid workers are doing alright compared to their grandpar-

But the reality is far different.

In fact, had the federal minimum wage kept pace with workers' productivity in the past five decades, the inflation-adjusted minimum wage would be $24 an hour.

The reality of the $7.25 minimum wage, which has been at that level since 2009, is that a person working a full-time job at the minimum wage officially falls below the national poverty level, a reality that would be laughably absurd if it were not so harmful to millions of Americans.

President Joe Biden has proposed increasing the minimum wage across the country to $15.00 by 2024, essentially bringing it into line with Massachusetts and a few other states that already are near or at that level. (The minimum wage in Massachusetts presently stands at $13.50 and will increase incrementally here and in seven other states to $15.00 within the next two years.)

Raising the federal minimum wage to $15 an hour by 2025 would raise wages of up to 27.3 million workers -- almost 20 percent of American workers -- and lift 1.3 million families out of poverty, according to a report by the Congressional Budget Office.

Some on the political spectrum speak exultingly about the dignity of work.

But they ignore the other side of the equation, which is that it is below the dignity of anyone to work for wages that amount to not much better than slave labor.

The time has come to raise the minimum wage and yes, to Make America Great Again -- for everybody.

OREGON LEADS THE WAY ON DRUGS

For more than 50 years, America has been fighting the "war on drugs," an endeavor that began under the administration of President Richard M. Nixon, who had the avowed purpose of arresting and incarcerating as many Blacks and other minorities as possible, especially for simple possession of marijuana.

The war on drugs has been a failure by any measure. Not only have we spent hundreds of billions of dollars on failed law enforcement efforts both in this country and around the globe, directly leading to the destabilization of many nations that has had profound effects both for those countries and ours, but it is fair to say that the drug war has destroyed the lives of more individuals, families, and communities than the drugs themselves.

Thanks to the war on drugs, the prison population in the United States exceeds every other nation on earth, both in terms of sheer numbers and based on population.

At long last, after 50 years of fruitless and costly failure, things are about to change.

Voters in the State of Oregon recently approved a ballot question that decriminalizes the possession of illegal drugs. Instead of throwing people in jail, the state will view drug use as a health issue, offering addicts treatment instead of prison time.

In Portugal, this approach has been used for 20 years. The result has been stunning. Drug overdose deaths and HIV and other drug-related infections have decreased dramatically. In addition, the removal of criminal penalties did NOT increase the rate of drug use.

The time has come for our society to acknowledge that the war on drugs, which was based on racism to begin with, must come to an end.

Oregon is leading the way -- and change is coming none too soon.

UNH's research portfolio includes partnerships with NASA, NOAA, NSF and NIH, receiving more than $100 million in competitive external funding every year to further explore and define the frontiers of land, sea and space.

Baker signs transportation bond bill, Everett gets $10 million

Representative Joe Mc-Gonagle and Mayor Carlo DeMaria are pleased to announce that the recently signed transportation bond bill includes $10 million to address issues surrounding Sweetser Circle in Everett.

'We waited a long time for this bill to finally get to the Governor's desk and I'm so thankful it has been passed and Everett is included," said McGonagle. "This money will be a huge investment in improving traffic and road concerns in our community. I am very thankful to all in the legislature who helped get this passed, including Senator Sal Di-Domenico, and to Mayor DeMaria for making this a priority for the city. I'd also like to thank Jay Monty without whom this would not have been possible."

Although the House originally passed the bill in March 2020, the pandemic put the official passing of this bill on hold until January 2021 when the committee sent the final version to the Governor. While the Governor signed off on most of the bill, he vetoed a few pieces, including raising fees on rideshare apps such as Uber and Lyft. Overall, the bill contained $16.5 billion for investments in the Commonwealth's transportation systems.

"I'm happy to have worked with Rep McGonagle to secure $10M in the Transportation Bond Bill for Sweetser Circle," said DeMaria. "This will be a down payment on what we hope will be a complete transformation of the traffic circle that will not only calm traffic and create safe pedestrian access between upper and lower Broadway, but also include access to the Silver Line, Commuter Rail, Northern Strand Bike Path and Malden River walks, creating a truly multi-modal transportation hub in the City."

EFD selected to participate in community risk reduction pilot program

The Everett Fire Department has been selected by the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) to participate in the second phase of a pilot program to build a digital community risk assessment (CRA) tool. Aligned to NFPA 1300, Standard on Community Risk Assessment and Community Risk Reduction Plan Development, the tool, or "dashboard," enables community leaders to gain valuable insights and make data-informed decisions around fire prevention and other risk-reduction activities in their

- a process that identifies and prioritizes risks and ensures impactful mitigation initiatives- has been gaining traction across North America for more than 20 years. Innovative technology, access to data, and a shifting focus on prevention have resulted in new energy around this process. Reflecting that momentum, NFPA's CRA tool works to help fire departments aggregate and disseminate data that pinpoint where risks exist within a given community. "Access to accurate data will allow CRR leaders to use insights and make informed decisions about where to focus efforts and resources," said Karen Berard-Reed, community risk reduction strategist at NFPA. "While many departments have struggled to work with data sets, NFPA's CRA tool will do the complex work behind the scenes to compile relevant data allowing stakeholders to create effective community risk reduction plans that incorporate five priorities - education, engineering, enforcement, economic incentives, and emergency response - in the most impactful ways possible."

The first phase of the pilot project, which included participation from 50 fire departments across the country, helped identify features of the digital dashboard that will work effectively and those that need fine-tuning. During the second phase of the program, which involves participation from 250 departments nationwide, the Everett Fire Department will provide insights around the use of dashboard through June of 2021 to help continue refining and enhancing its effectiveness. "Participation in this project allows each fire department to provide important feedback that will be used to improve future versions of the dashboard, positions the community among CRR leaders in the United States, and signals an interest in leveraging technology to drive high-quality community safety initiatives," said

Berard-Reed.

As a participant in the pilot program, Everett Fire Department will have free access to the dashboard, which includes customized visualizations (maps, charts, graphs) that illustrate each community's risks and hazards across a variety of categories such as demographics, geography, building stock, economics, infrastructure, and event loss history. The dashboard also provides a snapshot of local capacity for risk reduction activities with information about public safety response agencies and community service organizations. In addition to dashboard access, par-

"We are thrilled to be participating in this important project," said Tony Carli, Chief, Everett Fire Department. "Not only will access to the tool give us invaluable information about our community's needs, but it's rewarding to know that using the tool will increase its effectiveness and help other fire departments in the long run.

DiDomenico highlights disparities at state Health Equity Task Force hearing

On February 1st, Sen-Sal DiDomenico testified before the Commonwealth's Health Equity Task Force regarding health disparities that underserved and underrepresented communidisproportionately experience in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Senator DiDomenico represents one of the hardest-hit districts in Massachusetts, and throughout this pandemic, his Senate office has centered the Commonwealth's vulnerable residents and worked to address the fallout from the COVID-19

"COVID-19 has offered us tangible and concrete representation of health inequities that have been in existence in Massachusetts for many years but have now been exponentially worsened due to the public health crisis," said DiDomenico. "Data has clearly illuminated what we have already known infection rates are highest and most disproportionate in traditionally underserved communities, like those I represent. If we are to comprehensively and holistically solve the health-related inequities in our state, it is my recommendation that we first ensure the stability of the most fundamental necessities of our residents."

During the virtual Task Force hearing, Senator DiDomenico highlighted policy priorities that he continues to champion in the Legislature; issues that have a direct impact on public health outcomes for Massachusetts residents. These priorities include:

•the disproportionate impact of COVID on environmental justice communities and the need further enfranchise these populations;

•the growing necessity of housing stability during the pandemic and the increased need for a right to counsel in housing court;

•the need to provide financial assistance to those living in deep povertyi.e., those living below half the federal poverty line; and ticipants will be provid-

•the need to provide comprehensive medical coverage and care to immigrant children living with disabilities.

Senator DiDomenico has filed corresponding legislation to address all of these issue areas and respectfully urged the Task Force to consider these policy priorities in their upcoming recommendations. "Both Dr. Assaad Sayah and Michael Curry have been longtime public health champions in our communities, and as chairs of the Health Equity Task Force, I have no doubt that they will continue to shed light on how on we can further support our most vulnerable populations. I am deeply grateful for their efforts, as well as their invitation to testify on the experiences that my constituents are acutely experiencing throughout this pandemic."

City of Everett develops call center to assist seniors with covid19 vaccine sign up

Mayor Carlo DeMaria is pleased to announce that on Monday, February 1, City of Everett employees, led by the Constituent Services Department, assisted hundreds of Everett senior citizens in making appointments to receive their COVID-19 vaccines.

Understanding the need of our Seniors, the City developed a phone bank type calling system where City employees assisted residents in signing up through the state's website. Appointments were made available beginning at 8am and by 2pm, all 800 appointments were filled. Vaccines are being administered to Everett residents only ages 75 and over on Saturday, February 6 and Sunday, February 7 at Pope John XXIII High School. "My Administration is committed to helping the community and I could not be more proud," said Mayor DeMaria. "I wanted to ensure that our seniors were able to make an appointment even if they did not have internet access. I am grateful to the Constituent Services and 3-1-1 Department and all employees who provided assistance."

Seniors were able to make the appointment on their own online, however, they were encouraged to call 3-1-1 for any questions or assistance regarding the COVID-19 vaccine. City of Everett employees formed a phone bank system to provide support with the calls.

As more vaccines become available from the Commonwealth, the City of Everett will share more information with the public. Residents ages 75 and over who were unable to make an appointment and called 3-1- 1 have been added to a database. The City will reach out once there is another vaccina-

Everett High School students visit City Hall with City Council President Wayne Mmatewsky

City Council President Wayne Matewsky welcomed two Everett High School students to join on Tuesday, January 26th. The two students, Kien Lau and Samaga Pokharel, weråe very excited for their visit.

"It was so great to see Kien and Samaga," said President Matewsky. "I was proud to guide them on a visit of City Hall. It's young members of the that it is important for our great City's future." Lau is a Sophomore at Everett High School who has a deep interest in city government. He and his family moved to Everett from Vietnam when he was five years old and has valued every moment of his education. Lau feels erett.

Pokharel is a Junior at Everett High School who is also very interested in city government. Her family is from Nepal, and she is excited about helping people and making a difference. Pokharel also feels that it is important for young minorities in the community like Kien and young minorities to have City of Everett to speak up him for a tour of City Hall Samaga that help shape a voice in the City of Ev- and ensure that everyone "It is truly inspirational has a voice.

During the visit, President Matewsky brought Lau and Pokharel to the City Chambers. He provided them with a brief history and explained to them how a meeting is

He hopes that Lau and Pokharel will inspire other young members of the community to take an interest and become involved in the City.

Metro Housing Boston receives $1 million from BIDMC

HousinglBoston will receive $1 million over three years from Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center (BIDMC) to explore the inequality of calculating rent for working families with rental vouchers. Nearly $700,000 from the grant will be dispensed directly to participants in the form of monthly reimbursements to their housing voucher rent share. Metro Housing will survey working voucher families to see how they spend money that they receive, and to determine if there is any impact on what is known as "cliff effects.' As household income rises, a corresponding reduction in benefits makes salary increases result in static or decreased total household income. For families working to escape poverty, the specter of working harder to generate the same or less income has a discouraging effect on labor market participation. This phenomenon is known as "cliff effects."

Metro Housing will partner with the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), Harvard Business School, and the Upjohn Institute on this initiative.

"Working families are impacted disproportionally to those that subsist off benefits alone," said Susan Nohl, Deputy Director of Metro Housing. "This cruel cycle traps low-income residents on a plateau of subsistence, actively penalizing them for attempting to thrive. Our hope is that the data returned by this project will provide a solid foundation to advocate for meaningful change with policy-makers across all levels."

The grant was one of 17 given to local organizations by BIDMC in support of impactful initiatives in the areas of housing affordability, jobs and financial security, and behavioral health.

"BIDMC has a proud history of supporting the health and wellbeing of our communities," said Pete Healy, President of the medical center in a BIDMC press release. "This important milestone reflects our commitment to all the populations that we serve. We look forward to working with these impactful organizations to support programs and initiatives that lead to more equitable healthy and communities.'

"Congratulations Metro Housing on the award and thank you to BIDMC on making the funding available

seventeen projects

the region in support of working and vulnerable households," said Brendan Goodwin, Director Rental Assistance, DHCD. "Stable housing is vital for healthy and safe families. We will continue investing in innovative programming, and we look forward to learning more from Metro Housing's pilot to inform our own work."

"Working families who receive government assistance to help afford the high cost of rent often see those benefits phase out quickly when their income increases," said Evan Mast of Upjohn Institute and Ray Kluender of Harvard Business School. "We are excited to partner with Metro Housing Boston to study how allowing families to keep more of their wages can help them achieve financial stability and security."

Congress funds low-income ratepayer relief, perhaps more assistance on the way

By Seth Daniel

The MWRA Advisory Board reported that the recent federal COVID Relief bill contained significant resources to help low-income residents in the MWRA communities with assistance.

As part of its FY 2021 appropriations and COVID-19 relief bill passed in December, Congress included $638 million in assistance for low-income water and wastewater ratepayers, said the Advisory Board. The Board reported in its January newsletter that it anticipates there could be more ratepayer relief in future federal funding In anticipation of that,

Advisory Board staff will be sending out a brief survey to member communities to better understand the impacts that the pandemic has had upon the water and sewer programs. They would also like to know what types of federal funding or programs might best help communities or ratepay-Responses will help

Everett Community Growers make move to old High School

The Everett Community Growers (ECG) has made a big move this winter to the old Everett High School on Broadway, and will be growing in the front yard there this summer with a new Farm Stand put up and educational programs to assist the Everett Public Schools - according to a presentation made to the School Committee on Monday night.

The ECG has had gardens throughout the City, but previously hosted the Urban Farm on the side of the Northern Strand Bike Path. However, with construction on the path coming soon, the ECG decided to move and found a more accessible location they believe will help their organization further transform.

"We are really excited and really excited for the farm and farm stand in that space," said Kathleen O'Brien of ECG. "It's a very accessible space and we always wanted to grow in that space for years. It was actually our first choice when we started, but we decided to put it along the trail."

Farm Manager Lenka McNally said they plan on New location for our community fari 2021: Old EHS

- New farm, farmstand and educational center to
- be used by students and community groups
- Close proximity to EPS schools
- Direct correlation with multiple curriculum areas at all grade levels
 - o Science, economics, food + environmental justice, etc.
- Crucial hands-on experience
 - o Beneficial to physical, mental and academic health dividing the space in front of the old High School into two sections. The right side will be reserved for gardening and farming, growing the Three Sisters (squash, corn and beans), an herb garden and a Butterfly Garden. It will also house the Farm Stand that will be open to the public for purchase.

The left side will be a farming and ecology educational center aligned with the Everett Public Schools and open to community groups as well. ECG has already been working with GreenRoots in Chelsea, specifically their ECOYouth Team, to develop a curriculum for the Education Center that would enhance instruction plant biology, food justice and environmental justice.

McNally said they've always had space constraints at their farm and gardens since forming about five years ago, but now find themselves with space to do the things they've always wanted especially reaching out to children in an urban set-

"We see this as a good opportunity for our community and for our children and to learn about agriculture," said McNally. "The main thing for us is access to the outside in urban areas and that can't be replace by anything else in Everett."

The ECG also hopes to host field trips to the farm by local schools, many of whom can simply walk there and not have to employ transportation.

ECG has also formulated long term goals that include having a garden at every school and making it part of the curriculum and school community. They hope to be able to supply the cafeterias with food from the Urban Farm and the school gardens. They also would like every school to have an indoor grow room space.

Members of the School Committee were very receptive to the plan, and Supt. Priya Tahiliani said with that, there would be more exciting announcements coming.

reservation.

Now, the hopeful Everett Public School (EPS) plan to get kids back in school lies in ruin for the moment.

"Our plans, unfortunately, they have been delayed at the state level," said Tahiliani on Monday night at the School Committee meeting.

"The state has changed guidelines for the COVID-19 vaccine," she said. "This has unfortunately prevented us from being able to facilitate a vaccine clinic for EPS teachers and staff. Our hope was for teachers to receive it this weekend. Now that timetable has been thrown in flux and we have to adjust on the fly.

She said Mayor Carlo DeMaria and the City's Health Department advocated and did everything they could to try to secure the doses needed to get the EPS teachers and staff inoculated and on target to go back in March. However, she said the state had tightened up the reins on the vaccine, and just wouldn't allow Everett to do what it was planning to do.

She said now there is no date or timetable for a return according to the previous plan, and she said it is necessary to keep in mind the majority of parents who said they wanted to send their kids back to school. She said it might be time staff coming back without the vaccine.

to think about teachers and on science, economics,

"If we do not move on hybrid learning as fast as we reasonably can, it does mean we are not responding to a very significant percentage of our families," she said.

"We have been cautious and deliberate in our approach to the pandemic," she continued. "I think we have reached the next juncture where we need to commit to launching our hybrid plan. If we need to consider doing this regardless of whether we can offer vaccine clinics to staff, and it was our best intention to do so, but the clock is ticking and we do kind of need to decide what our plan is for this school year. The next few weeks are going to be critical in determining what we can offer our students in the last three or four months of the school year." That, however, was not on the mind of the ETA. In a presentation by President Kim Auger and ETA Board Member Anna Seiders, they presented how teachers have found success in remote learning, and that there are major concerns among their membership about returning without a

Auger said they have done surveys of hundreds of members and found that 60 percent would return with reservations without a vaccine, and 19 percent would not return and take a waiver. Only 7 percent of teachers surveyed were ready to return now as is.

A major worry for teachers is not only for themselves and their families, but rather all the families of EPS - including the families of the students. Many teachers at the Jan. 19 meeting expressed concern that students live in multi-generational households and could bring the virus home from school to a vulnerable grandparent.

Auger reiterated that concern Monday night as

The ETA is calling for several items to be cleared before they would return. Those items include:

•Vaccination.

•5 percent or lower positivity rate (Everett is just above 10 percent now).

•Three straight weeks of downward trending cases.

•Below 20 cases per 100,000 people.

 Decline in the cases within the school-age population.

"We do feel we need to have both vaccinations before coming back to any teaching and learning environment," said Auger.

School Committee members were markedly frustrated, but mostly at the state for moving the measuring stick in the midst of measuring.

"I'm questioning the hypocrisy of all this because it doesn't make sense," said Abruzzese of the state's change of mind. "I got a letter from the courts where I work saying for all state workers to remain remote until June 1, but he's also telling us to get kids in school. There are lines crossing here that don't make sense to me. I'm in support of everything said her tonight, but I'm questioning the leadership nationally and state-wise as to what's going on here." School Committeewoman Dana Murray said it is simply a state issue, and that 26 other states have prioritized teachers, but not Massachusetts.

"We've made a decision in this state to move teachers to the back of the line," she said. "I'm very, very angry right now."

Said School Committeeman Marcony Almeida Barros, "I am very concerned with the mental health of our students, especially in Everett where many students are low-income and a lot of parents are not there to help the with remote learning," he said. "That's why I'm concerned about mental health and why I'm very interested in moving to hybrid when it's safe for everybody."

Winter sports seasons kick off with practices this week

By Seth Daniel

Three winter sports will begin practice sessions this week in anticipation of Greater Boston League (GBL) games in March, with Athletic Director Tammy Turner stepping aside from her long-time spot coaching the girls' basketball team in order to focus on keeping teams safe with COVID.

Supt. Priya Tahiliani reported the news to the School Committee on Monday night, saying that many other teams in the area have begun competition and it has been safe and successful so far. She said the boys' basketball, girls' basketball and ice hockey teams will begin gearing up for a short season this week.

"This week, our EHS teams will start practicing," she said. "The GBL plan is to have one month of conditioning and practice, with games in early March... Schools across the state are already well into their winter seasons and I'm happy our students and GBL schools can begin as well."

The program has already been approved by the School Committee, and was to start in January, but GBL schools opted to postpone due to rising COVID-19 cases in their member communities.

AD Turner will focus solely on the duties of safe competition, and will step aside from coaching this year, with Riley Dunn now becoming the girls' basketball coach. Meanwhile, Stanley Chamblain will remain the boys' basketball coach for the season, and Alex Naumann will continue to lead the ice hockey program at the Allied Veterans Rink in Everett.

There will be no fans allowed at the games this year, not even parents. All games will be live-streamed though so fans and families can watch from home or on a mobile device.

There also will be no cheerleaders this winter either.

The Junior Varsity teams will begin practices next week.

The precautions are extensive, and will be very different from normal competitions.

honorees as they led their companies and industries through a time of crisis," said James E. Rooney, President & CEO of the GBCC. "As we begin the 27th year of the Chamber's Women's Network, it is even more important that we amplify the voices and accomplishments of women in the business community as they lead us forward."

President Eddinger shared her story of migrating to the United States with her parents, who wanted a better education for their children. She credits her parents for her leadership in the community college movement so the next generation of immigrants will have choices, will have language, and will see a broader horizon. "I do my work so every immigrant and native child will have access to affordable, higher education and be touched by the grace and power of the arts," said Dr. Eddinger.

Encore announces new Executive Chef at Rare Steakhouse

Encore Boston Harbor is pleased to announce that culinary talent Chef John Ross has accepted the position of executive chef of Rare Steakhouse. Ross has been with Encore Boston Harbor since its opening in 2019.

Prior to joining the team at Rare, Ross was the executive chef of Oyster Bar and Waterfront, where he brought his experience and flair for imaginative and sumptuous seafood creations to the menu. Prior to joining Encore, Ross served as executive chef of the famed Neptune Oyster in Boston's North End. It was there where Ross established himself as a beloved personality in the local culinary scene.

"Chef John Ross has been such an important member of the Encore Boston Harbor family and we are thrilled to have him take the helm of Rare Steakhouse, our celebrated steakhouse," said Encore Boston Harbor President Brian Gullbrants. "His talent and culinary skills will continue to elevate menu and guest dining experience at Rare."

Born and raised in North Carolina, Ross got an early start in the restaurant business bussing tables at the restaurant of a family friend through his teenage years. His love of the industry guided him to obtain degrees from the Culinary Institute of America and University of Nevada.

In 2006, John became executive sous chef and later executive chef for Blue Water Bistro in Naples, Florida, before starting The Alibi, a late-night sandwich restaurant in Miami that became an overnight success. Later, Ross moved to Boston to return to the fine dining environment that he loved. He held positions as sous chef for Sorellina and executive sous chef for The Painted Burro and Lincoln Tavern & Restaurant until he was offered the position of executive chef at Neptune Oyster. Under Ross' stewardship, Neptune Oyster consistently ranked among the best seafood restaurants in Boston and was named "Best Seafood Restaurant 2015" by Boston Magazine.

In his free time, Ross is an avid cyclist and participant in the annual Pan-Mass Challenge and is a supporter of Share Our Strength. He lives in Winthrop with his wife and their two cats.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE REGION

CHA STAFF NEARLY FULLY VACCINATED

CHELSEA - The good news on the hospitalization front from CHA Everett is that not much has changed in either direction, but the hospital is handling the load according to plan and well on their way to having the staff fully vaccinated for COVID-19.

The numbers of those testing positive in the hospital's catchment area seems to be on the decline, and the hospital is reporting that there are cases in large numbers, but nothing has gotten out of con-

"The good news is there isn't too much different from two weeks ago, but that also might be the bad news," said Dr. Melisa Lai-Becker, chief of the Emergency Department at CHA Everett. "We're getting back into the rhythm of care and coordination. Overall, in the last two weeks, while we may have fewer overall admitted patients and more available room to get patients into the hospital, it's also been a time of figuring out the care of patients who are beyond the acute phase and still need eyes on them."

That has meant some patients are now being sent to field hospitals in Lowell and Worcester for the longer recovery times, but at the same time there isn't a panic going on.

"There's nothing about it that is frantic,' she said. "Everything has been good, calm and measured...Rather than complacency, the hospital has enforced our plan. All that planning from last summer and fall that's we see in action here now... We're happy to press on and there is light at the end of the tunnel."

Statistics show that in the catchment area of the hospital (Malden, Chelsea, Revere, Everett, Winthrop, Cambridge and Somerville), there was a peak of cases in the week of Jan. 11, with 3,100 cases. Now, however, the same area is reporting 2,500 positive cases. At CHA, since March, they have tested 100,000 people, and about 8,000 have been positive.

Now, a new precaution has been implemented on the testing front to make sure the hospital if monitored for COVID-19. Now, every four days one is in the hospital or Emergency Department, they are tested for their COVID

VACCINATIONS FOR STAFF MOVING WELL

Though there have been glitches and line-jumping at some institutions, that is not the case at CHA Everett when it comes to vaccinating the staff. Dr. Lai-Becker reported that about 75 percent of the CHA staff has received the first dose of the vaccine and 25 percent have received both doses. By the end of the month, they expect to be able to vaccinate everyone who wants to be vaccinated on the

PLANNING FOR VACCINATIONS OF THE PUBLIC

The hospital and its networks are now in the planning stages for figuring out how to vaccinate all of their patients when the time comes for that.

"CHA as a whole is working on how we can vaccinate all 140,000 of our patients, those who come to CHA for their Primary Care. We are prepping now. It's a very intentional rollout due to the face we're in the phase where the two part vaccine is being used...A lot of it is that every shot you get today is a shot you'll need to get in three weeks. That's an incredible amount of logistics, and calculations and back to the old conversation about the supply chain.'

At CHA Everett, the vaccine rollout will be through the primary care doctors, with major assists from all others like the Emergency Department. With testing to administer and follow-ups to book, many primary care doctors will need a tremendous amount of help. She said they will likely be using visits to the hospital, the health care centers, pop-up vaccination sites and maybe a larger site that isn't Fenw ay Park.

She said many are at the point where there's a lot of familiarity with the plan and they simply want to let it loose.

"We know where the bottlenecks are," she said. "Let's just get everybody vaccinated. We're at a point where we could get everyone vaccinated within a timeframe and thinking less about trying to prioritize the elderly or essential workers."

She said she believes the area is near an inflection point where it will simply be about anyone getting vaccinated can get vaccinated.

"I would think we'll hit this inflection point in the next two to four weeks where they start giving the vaccine to every person no matter who they are - get vaccinated if you want it because that's just one more and it gets us closer to herd immunity."

NO NEED TO HORD PPE

About one week ago, a momentous occasion took place at the hospital.

Everyone had enough N95 mask.

Dr. Lai-Becker said for the first time since the pandemic broke out, they do not need to recycle or use the viral decay system they have been doing so long to preserve their mask supply.

Instead, they can go to the supply area and get five masks to use for five shifts. Before, they used every mask five to eight times and then got rid of it. Now, they can use one mask per shift, and then get rid of it, while still having confidence they will have more waiting for them the next shift.

UPPER BROADWAY BUILDING CONTINUES

CHELSEA - The massive re-building of Upper Broadway continues to progress through Phase 1, with crews now at Cary Avenue and one-third of the way done on their trek to the Revere City Line.

The DPW's Fidel Maltez said the water and sewer replacement work that started in September is divided up into three zones, and crews are now 100 percent done with the zone from City Hall to Cary Avenue.

"Now we're doing Cary Avenue to Webster," he said. "We did break it up in zones and we're 100 percent done in that first section now."

Work began in front of City Hall in August 2020 and has steadily progressed northward. As typical in construction, the deeper utilities are installed first, with each subsequent utility installed becoming shallower; for this project, that has meant that sewer main has been installed first, followed by sewer service transfer, water main installation. water service transfer, and then, for areas that are part of the first phase of sewer/stormwater separation, drainage.

Work on water main installation is wrapping up between Cary Ave and Eleanor Street, which means over the next several weeks, residents in this area will have their water services transferred to the new water main. Chelsea Police and the Department of Public Works have been working with the contractor and the MBTA to keep bus stops open and to try to limit the impact this project has on the commu-

The project is on schedule and is slated to be complete by its October 31, 2021 deadline.

The second part of the project will be the improved streetscape and sidewalks.

Alex Train, director of Housing and Community Development, said they are in the process of designing the streetscape improvements, which will begin in the spring of 2022.

"In parallel with utility construction, the City, through the Dept. of Housing & Community Development and Dept. of Public Works, has been finishing up the design of comprehensive streetimprovements," scape he said. "Slated to break ground in April of 2022, the streetscape project is fully financed by a federal grant from the Boston Metropolitan Planning Organization. The project calls for the reconstruction of the roadway, sidewalks, and drainage system, as well as the installation of new bus stops, bike lanes, and street trees. Over the course of 2021, the City will host public meetings on the new design."

The Capital Improvement projects are designed to replace aging water, sewer and drain infrastructure. Aging sewers can allow sewage into the groundwater and infiltrate groundwater into the sewer; both are detrimental to the environment, and increase the cost to the water and sewer system.

Separating stormwater from the sewer system reduces the amount of water sent to the MWRA, resulting in reduced costs to residents. Replacing the water main eliminates problems with water quality and leaking pipes. At the completion of this project, nearly a mile of both water main and sewer main will have been replaced from City Hall to the Revere city line. Additionally, all homes in the corridor will receive a new 1-inch copper water service and all sewer services will be replaced or cement lined at no cost to the property owners.

Finally, any lead water service lines encountered in the project will be re-

WALSH ANNOUNCES NEW ZBA TRACKER

EAST BOSTON - For the past decade East Boston has experienced a development boom that can be hard to keep track of for the average resident. Unless you have attended one of several community group meetings held each month in various parts of the neighborhood it has become increasingly difficult to keep abreast of development projects happening in Eastie. This week Mayor Martin Walsh announced a new Zoning Board of Appeal (ZBA) project tracker that will allow residents to gather information about ongoing projects. The new online tool that can be found at https://experience.arcgis.com/experience/c019ba9a25cb-

4f33bb6cdd2f69b543d4/ page/page_0/ fulfills the requirements set forth in Mayor Walsh's Executive Order Relative to the Zoning Board of Appeal.

Walsh said this new tool will increase access to information related to proposed projects seeking relief from the ZBA. The tracker is designed for anyone to quickly search for a specific appeal that has been submitted to the ZBA, or to search for appeals based on criteria such as location or applicant, in order to identify the status of the appeal.

"Increasing access to the workings of municipal government is important for our residents to have access to resources about the city's role in the development and livelihood of our residents," said Walsh. "The Zoning Board of Appeals' online tracker will increase our city's transparency and our residents' understanding of our neighborhoods."

The East Boston Times took a look at the new, easy to use ZBA Tracker Monday. The new feature allows viewers to use an interactive map of Eastie or other Boston neighborhoods to view projects seeking relief or by typing in the address which provides the following additional details for each proposed project: The status of the appeal; Community process; Date and location of an appeal application; Hearing scheduled; Address of the proposed project; Status of project; Deferral date; Hearing result; Application numbers; Zoning district; Contact information; Appeal type; and Date of submission. For example a quick search of recent hearing results in Eastie showed three projects that were recently approved by the

On January 13,2020 the ZBA approved projects on London, Porter and Whitby Streets.

For the project on 185 London Street the ZBA approved plans to repair the foundation within the home's setback, add a penthouse, increase the floor area ratio, renovate

EBNHC WORKERS GET SECOND VACCINE SHOT

EAST BOSTON. - Last week, healthcare workers from the East Boston Neighborhood Health Center received their second dose of the Moderna vaccine for Covid-19. EBNHC medical staff received the first round of the Moderna vaccine. which is given in two doses 28 days apart, in December. "I'm thankful to our vaccine team who have been focused on vaccinating our staff as quickly and efficiently as possible", said EBNHC Vice President of Human Resources Steven Snyder. "We are still giving out first doses and have just completed our first week of second doses and are close to 75 percent of our staff vaccinated. Staff have been thrilled to receive the vaccine, especially those treating COVID patients day in and day out."

Based on evidence from clinical trials, the Moderna vaccine was 94.1 percent effective at preventing laboratory-confirmed COVID-19 illness in people who received two doses who had no evidence of being previously infected.

According to the CSC the vaccine appeared to have high effectiveness in clinical trials (efficacy) among people of diverse age, sex, race, and ethnicity categories and among persons with underlying medical conditions.

Although few people in the clinical trials were admitted to the hospital, this happened less often in the people who got the Moderna vaccine compared to people who got the saline placebo. Last week the Baker-Polito Administration announced that all residents in Phase One of the state vaccine distribution plan are eligible to receive a COVID-19 vaccine, effective immediately.

State residents eligible for vaccine immediately under Phase One include: COVID-facing healthcare workers; Long term facilities (LTCF) residents and staff; First Responders (EMS, Fire, Police); Congregate Care setting residents and staff (including corrections and shelters): Homebased healthcare workers: and Non-COVID-facing healthcare workers.

Eligible residents can now make appointments to receive vaccines at more than 150 locations across the state. These locations can be found at https:// www.mass.gov/info-details/covid-19-vaccine-locations-for-individuals-in-phase-1#find-a-location-to-get-vaccinated-if-eligible-

So far the state has vaccinated close to 360,000 people with 86,230 doses administered last week

The state will roll out vaccines during a three phase approach that will take place between now and April.

Phase II will be between February and March 2021 and will include individuals with two or more co-morbid conditions with a high risk for COVID-19 complications; workers including early education, K-12, transit, grocery, utility, food and agriculture, restaurant and cafe workers; employees across the food, beverages, agriculture, consumer goods, retail, and foodservice sectors; meatpackers; sanitation, public works and public health workers, vaccine development food pantry workers, workers, Uber/Lyft/rideshare services, pharmacy delivery drivers, workers in the passenger ground transportation industry; water and wastewater utility staff; and adults 65 and

TRAFFIC SIGNALS TO BE CHANGED

REVERE -One of the busiest intersections in Revere – located at Cushman Avenue and School Street, and centered by Broadway - is about to get a compete makeover. And when all is said and done, the traffic flow on frequently clogged Broadway should improve drastically.

The City Council approved a request by Chief Finance Officer Richard Viscay that the Council supplement the $1.5 million state grant for the overhaul of the traffic signals and repaving of the crosswalks on Broadway with a city appropriation of $216,103. The money will come out of the city's Community Investment Trust Fund.

"This is a great project where we can leverage $200,000 against a $1.5 million bond and really try to improve the traffic flow and traffic light signals on Broadway," said Viscay, adding that the actual project is being managed by the Planning Department. Julie DeMauro, transportation manager for the city, said the additional appropriation would go toward traffic signalization "and to bring all of the crosswalks and pedestrian signals up to ADA compliance."

Ward 4 Councilor Patrick Keefe asked about the timeline for the project.

"The project has already gone out for bid and we have received three bids and we have not yet awarded the bid to the lowest bidder," said DeMauro. "We would like to start the project in April so we can get everything done by September, weather permitting."

DeMauro said the project would begin at the intersection of Beach Street and Fenno Street and encompass all intersections (that have traffic lights) through Revere Street and Malden Street.

"What about the smaller streets like Prospect Avenue and Mountain Ave that don't have traffic lights?" asked Ward 2 Councilor Ira Novoselsky.

DeMauro said those streets would not be addressed under the project. "There would be no work done to those intersections because they have no crossing signal or pedestrian traffic lights at all," replied DeMauro.

Ralph DeCicco, chair of the Revere Disabilities Commission, said the project will benefit disabled residents and Revere seniors. "It's long overdue," said DeCicco, adding that one of the greatest needs is the redesign of the Cushman-School-Broadway intersection.

"That intersection is probably going to be the most significant in terms of changes and in terms of the way the intersection functions," said DeMauro. "There's going to be a lot of work and rework for that intersection. You have 6-7 crosswalks all in that one intersection."

Ward 3 Councilor Arthur Guinasso said the foot traffic is significant at that intersection "based on the fact that it's a feeding source for three schools, the high school, the Whalen School, and the Lincoln School."

"An upgrade in that particular case is much needed and we've been looking forward to this for years," said Guinasso. "So it's welcomed. We're thankful it's coming and I think this is money well spent."

and recently teachers and the district agreed on a plan for part-time in-person learning – known as hybrid education – that centered on getting teachers vaccinated before that return. The plan was shot down by Gov. Charlie Baker late last week, and Peyser said he doesn't believe it's important to get vaccinated before a return.

Instead, he said the education gaps that are growing, particularly in all-remote, low income communities like Everett, should be the top thing on everyone's minds.

"Let me be clear, we do not think schools should wait for testing or vaccines to be deployed before bringing their students back into classrooms for in-person instruction," he said. "As you all know this issue isn't only about COVID. It's about educational progress, mental health, social-emotional development and equity. Our children, especially those in traditionally underserved communities and high-needs students, are suffering the most developmental creating losses and exacerbating achievement gaps. For these reasons we need to open up our classrooms for as many children as possible as soon as possi-Peyser said that the rollout of COVID-19 education has shown remarkable foresight, innovation, caring and planning. However, he said all-remote schooling in underserved communities has not been a highlight – despite the accolades often discussed in Everett and by the Everett Teachers Association (ETA). He said these gaps and the limitations of all-remote schooling are reason enough to get back into the classroom. "It doesn't mean everything has gone smoothly or that there haven't been significant gaps and setbacks especially in regard to student learning and development and particularly in those communities that have been providing mostly remote instruction throughout most of the school year so far," he

"There is an ever growing body of evidence and first-hand experience here Massachusetts and across the country and the world that schools are safe spaces for children and adults when the standard health safety protocols are followed.

"Even in communities with higher level of COVID cases, there is little or no evidence of in school transmission with various studies showing rates for students who are in school are lower than for kids that are learning at home," he continued.

Returning to school, he said, should not be a monetary issue.

He said the CARES Act originally funded $200 million in the state for schools, and Gov. Baker added another $200 million of that for schools returning to in-person ed-Of that, $170 million has vet to be drawn down by school districts to be used to return kids to school. He said there is also another $734 million in school-district funding on the way to Massachusetts as part of the December federal Stimulus plan. He said there is plenty of money available or coming to districts that would allow costs not to be a barrier to returning to the classroom. He also touched on the touchy subject of testing and vaccinations for teachers, noting they are deemed essential workers, but would not be moved up in the Phase 2 plan already outlined. "We are rolling out a first in the nation statewide testing program for students and staff to provide for even more support for instruction," he said. "The Governor has dedicated those working in early education and schools as essential workers in order to prioritize them for the a higher risk based on the numbers from those returning to in-person learn-As a consequence of an all-remote year, Peyser said they are prioritizing summer learning programs in cities like Everett. They will be known as Acceleration Academies and will provide catch-up - likely in person - education for students who are struggling and have struggled through a remote education year.

"This is not a one and done challenge," he said. "For many students it will take years of this effort to get back on track."

His comments were preceded by a strong call from Gov. Charlie Baker for kids to return to schools during his State of the State Address on Jan. "Study after study makes clear that kids need to be in school," he said. "Their educational and emotional development depends on it. And while in person learning is especially challenging during this time, many schools have found a way to get it done. Relying on state guidance, as well as federal and state funding, many special education programs, early education providers and some school districts have been able to make in person education work safely since the fall." He used the example of parochial schools in the state, which have largely been open since last fall for in-person learning. He said 45,000 kids have been attending school in-person since mid-August. "To encourage more public school districts to reopen their classrooms, we've been working with a number of lab partners to develop a weekly Covid testing program for kids, teachers and staff," he said. "The goal is to get as many kids as possible back in the classroom as soon as possible. This first-in-the-nation Covid testing program will help school districts make the call to offer full

Despite some interruption, Council committee dives into Internet issues

By Seth Daniel

The City is entering into a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) this week with the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) to take a "deep dive" into the Internet and connectivity issues that have plagued subscribers off all kinds through the City Communications Director Deanna Devaney told the Council Government Operations Committee on Thursday, Jan. 28, that with the numerous complaints about Internet connectivity in Everett from students, businesses and residents working from home.

"The City of Everett has signed and MOU with the MAPC," Devaney told the Committee, which was hosting representatives from ComCast. "As part of that MOU, it will create a digital access equity plan. They will be diving into Everett's data numbers in partnership with Everett Public Schools, Councilor Stephanie Martins and Councilor Michael Mc-Laughlin. The City will be undertaking this very deep dive shortly."

Devaney said they are looking to get in contact with faith-based organizations (many of whom are relying on Internet service for worship), the Chamber of Commerce and community based organizations as

She said they would be asking ComCast and other providers for information and she hoped they would work in tandem.

Tim Kelly, of Com-Cast, said they would be more than happy to help and have done so in Essex County already this past

That was only the tip of the iceberg at the meeting, which featured Councilor Jimmy Tri Le losing his patience with the ComCast representatives and causing such a scene that the online meeting had to be recessed for five minutes.

The long and short of his frustration came in that the ComCast officials seemed not to be getting to the heart of the issue, which was why Everett's Internet is so slow for so many people. "There's been a lot of technical jargon being said," he said in his first complaint. "There is a lot of arcane language being spoken...I have no problem with my Internet because I guess we pay the premium. Is that the problem? Is the way the Internet is slow for people because people pay the After another 20 minutes of presentation, Le burst in again.

"Just answer the question," he said, chiding the representatives for being "verbose."

"I'm going to have to stop this," said Councilor McLaughlin. "This is totally inappropriate." "Not it's not; it's a question," retorted Le. "Why question." That resulted in a verbal scuffle and, finally, Councilor Martins called for a is it slow? Just answer the

After the recess, Le and others apologized for the outburst, but the issue remained that the question hadn't been answered.

ComCast Network Director Jim Hevner said studies showing slower download speeds for different communities don't reflect a different Internet infrastructure. He said all communities are built out the same.

"It's a sort of standard that if you're in Everett, Wilmington, or Weston any community in Massachusetts, New Hampshire or Maine – you have 1.2 gigabyte speeds," he said. "You have the same as everyone else."

Kelly said Everett operates out of a hug - or head house - in Malden, and they are in a good space in terms of their infrastructure and available bandwidth for ComCast. In fact, for the region, Kelly said their Core Network has only had about 50 percent usage during the pandemic, and the Access Network has only reached as high as 85 percent usage. So, the system is not getting maxed out in Everett or the region, unlike in Europe where they ran out of bandwidth.

"We've never exceeded our capacity," he said. "Everett is actually in a great space (with Com-Cast) when it comes to network space and reliability," he said. "It's being monitored. It's being monitored for many performance indicators to reflect customer experience."

Hevner said they do a lot of testing throughout the network in Everett and the region to make sure speeds are up to par.

Kelly and ComCast's Angela Holm both said many times the problems could be in the network, but more than likely the problems exist in the home. It could be the gateway (or modem), the location of the gateway, or even the materials used in the house.

Holm said it also could be what tier one is subscribed to. With a lower tier, speeds are not as high or fast as the higher tiers, which could explain in actuality why speeds were much higher in wealthier communities than they were in Everett in last year's MAPC Digital Divide study.

Holm said it also depends on how many people in the house at the time, and what activities they are doing online.

"There is a possibility it could be our network,' said Kelly. "We've had squirrels chew through cables, and we've seen cables hit by gunshots. We've seen it all. We're not suggesting our hands are clean. It could be one of our nodes."

All agreed to work together through Martins' Committee, and through the upcoming City/MAPC study to sniff out the problems and fix them. Councilor Martins said she has been forwarding addresses from those complaining to ComCast or the other providers to figure out what the issues are. ComCast said they have already been working off that list, and that is also a method they used recently in Winthrop to fix widespread issues - some that were in the network and many issues that were in the home.

In related news, Com-Cast is embarking on a new usage-based billing system, where they put caps on data loads and penalize those that go over the cap on their plan. That system is not going into effect until the end of June, said Kelly, with new charges first showing on the August bill.

Martins suggested that the representatives return to the Committee in April for an update on connectivity and the City/MAPC

•WHEN IS STATE MONEY REALLY MON-EY FOR EVERETT?

Councilor Michael Mc-Laughlin called an information hearing with the Committee meeting last Thursday, Jan. 28, with members of the state delegation, including State Rep. Joe McGonagle and State Sen. Sal DiDomennagle wasn't able to attend, and didn't notify the Committee as to his absence. McLaughlin took the matter to task with a pretty pointed bashing of his former state rep opponent for not appearing.

"I am disappointed," he said. "It's great to get soundbites and it's great to get headlines, but when it comes to the nitty gritty of what's really coming to Everett from the state, I wanted to hear these things. "You have $13 million that was thrown around all last year that was supposedly secured for the City of Everett, yet I'd like to know if that $13 million hit our City coffers or if it hit the Eliot Family Resource Center and other areas. I guess we won't know that...He was invited and just chose not to show up tonight, which isn't surprising."

DiDomenico did show up and offered a cadre of state earmarks and budget items that he has secured through mostly direct appropriations. That means he advocated for the money and it was put in the State Budget, passed and then delivered to Everett.

The other part of the equation are Bond Bills, he said, which are a little more confusing. Bond Authorization Bills - which have been touted in Everett over the years, particularly Transportation Bond Bills – are only an initial step, he said.

"The direct appropriation you get right away," he said. "The bond bill appropriation you have to work it. You have to work on the governor and let him know how important this is to the community. You have to fight for those dollars because all 200 of us in the State Legislature will be fighting for those funds. You do have to get it into the bond bill first. It if doesn't get in first, it doesn't happen. We do have to work to get everything in the bond bill, but we have to work the governor to get the spending authorized. DiDomenico said the delegation from Everett, and Mayor Carlo DeMaria, are very vocal in advocating needs to the governor. However, he said just getting something into the bond bill doesn't equate to the successful securing of money to be delivered to "You have to push it," he said. "You can't sit back and wait for it to happen."

By Seth Daniel The New England Patriots might not be front and center this year, and maybe our quarterback is wintering in Florida this time around, but Boston still ranks as the third best city for football fans this season, according to the annual Super Bowl rankings done by WalletHub. Every year, the company does an analysis based on several metrics about which city has the best football fans. Naturally, with the Patriots on top and despite a meager following of college football, which is also ranked - Boston has come out in the top part of the list for years. Even with some of the magic missing, this year Boston landed and #3 for the best football town.

"Boston is the third best said WalletHub Analyst Jill Gonzalez. "The Patriots' performance level is the sixth highest among NFL teams, and they've won six NFL Championships, topping all the other teams. They also have 21 division championship wins, the fourth most, and the second highest franchise value in the country. Other reasons why Boston ranks so high include fan engagement, attendance, popularity, and the fact sons." This year,

The numbers were as follows: •Pittsburgh – 62.61

- •Dallas 55.55 •Boston – 54.19
- •New York City 49.88
- •Miami, FL 48.61 In order to determine the best and worst cities for football fans, WalletHub compared 245 U.S. cities based on 21 relevant metrics. Each metric was graded on a 100-point scale, with a score of 100 representing the most favorable conditions for football fans. For their sample, they chose cities with at least one professional football team (NFL) or at least one college football team

(NCAA, including FBS and FCS). They grouped

the cities by division —

mined each city's weighted average across all metrics to calculate its overall score and used the resulting scores to rank-order our sample. Due to the impact of the coronavirus pandemic on the NCAA schedule for the 2019-2020 season, for some metrics we considered the values up to the 2018-2019 season. This helps to ensure a level comparison field among the teams. Interestingly, Boston also tied Las Vegas and San Francisco for the most expensive ticket prices for a football game.

'Collecting Stories: The Invention of Folk Art'

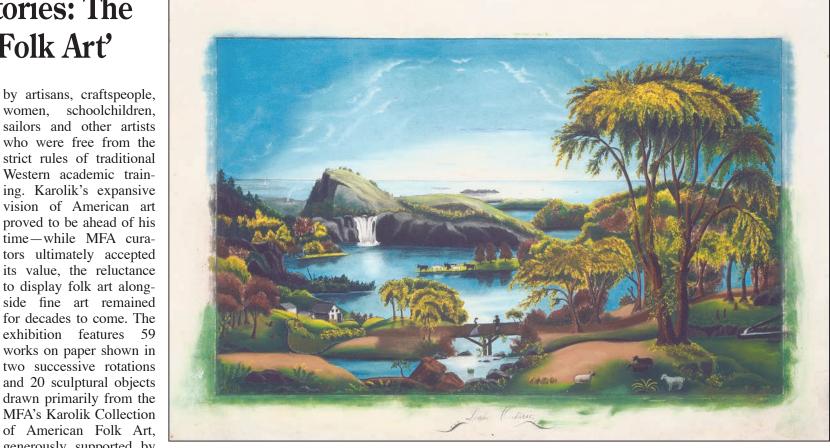

Organized by the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (MFA), "Collecting Stories: The Invention of Folk Art" reflects on benefactor and donor Maxim Karolik's quest to champion the "art of the people." The exhibition examines the creation of folk art as a collecting category in the early 20th century.

It will run from February 6 to Jan. 9, 2022.

Throughout the 1940s and '50s, Karolik championed the then-radical notion of incorporating American "folk art" into the Museum's collection and disrupting long-held standards and definitions of so-called "fine art." Through Karolik's enthusiasm and generosity, the MFA became one of the first encyclopedic museums in the country to actively collect works women, schoolchildren, sailors and other artists who were free from the strict rules of traditional Western academic training. Karolik's expansive vision of American art proved to be ahead of his time-while MFA curators ultimately accepted its value, the reluctance to display folk art alongside fine art remained for decades to come. The exhibition features 59 works on paper shown in two successive rotations and 20 sculptural objects drawn primarily from the MFA's Karolik Collection of American Folk Art, generously supported by the Henry Luce Founda-

National Grid launches 'Grid for Good' initiative to help disadvantaged youth

National Grid recently launched Grid for Good, a new initiative designed to increase the social mobility and employment opportunities for disadvantaged young people in the communities it serves in the U.S. and UK. This program is part of their Responsible Business Charter, which lays out the Company's commitments to the environment, employees, customers, and communities.

Through the Grid for Good program, National Grid employee volunteers work with young people ages 16-24 and teach them basic business skills and energy industry-specific skills needed in today's competitive job market. The program provides team building workshops to build participants' confidence and collaboration skills with problem solving exercises; along with activities to focus on resume writing, interview techniques, and workplace conflict resolution.

National Grid employees in the U.S. have committed to providing over 100 paid, two-week job shadowing experiences for participants. National Grid will connect participants with job opportunities in the energy industry, driven by charity partners MissionSAFE and YOU Boston.

"Grid for Good gives young people the opportunities they deserve to succeed," said Badar Khan, President of National Grid, U.S. "We hope the program will transform the lives of those who live and work in the communities we serve, and build a more diverse workforce of the future. As a business committed to acting responsibly, this is the kind of positive impact we want to have across our region."

"Grid for Good has been a fantastic way for me to give back by mentoring talented young professionals from underserved communities," said Clara Giustino, VP of Project Development and Commercial Services Capital Delivery. "For many, this program is one of the few windows into the corporate world. I'm proud to be a part of Grid for Good!" Through the Grid for Good program, National Grid plans to help 4,000 young people via 12,000 hours of volunteering in 2021. Grid for Good will also help bring diversity into the energy sector with qualified talent to help achieve the net zero ambition. Unemployment amongst young people is an existing issue, that has doubled since the Covid-19 pandemic. Now more than ever, National Grid wants to support its communities with Grid for Good.
