DiDomenico's legislation on new soccer stadium proposal nears the finish line

The decision on Sen. Sal DiDomenico's legislation that would allow the Kraft Group to build a new soccer stadium on the site of a former power plant in Everett is imminent.

The Senate passed its economic development bill last Thursday, advancing DiDomenico's request to a joint conference committee of three state representatives and three state senators.

"The vote [by the Senate] is an exciting development for our community and for the region," said DiDomenico. "The language passed the State Senate in the economic development bill, so it goes on to the conference committee now for the House and Senate to come to an agreement on the differences between the two bills. We're looking for a resolution by the end of the month."

The ultimate destination for the bill is the desk of Gov. Maura Healey, who is reportedly in favor of it. The deadline for the signing of the bill for this legislative session is July

"I'm hopeful that this is the time when we get this bill across the finish line," said DiDomenico. "We anticipate Gov. Healey signing the bill."

Representatives from the Kraft Group have indicated that they would like to build a new soccer stadium on the power plant site located at 173 Alford St. The 25,000-seat stadium would be the home of the New England Revolution who compete in Major League Soccer (MLS). The Kraft Group also has plans to build a new waterfront park along the Mystic River.

"We're hopeful that we get that power plant building knocked down, the land cleaned up as soon as possible, and we'll be on our way to getting a new development on the waterfront," said DiDomenico "The exciting part of this is also getting public access to the waterfront for the first time on that site in 100 years."

Council President Van Campen voices his support for plans

City Council President Robert Van Campen has expressed his support of Sen. DiDomenico's legislation that opens the door to the construction of a new soccer stadium in Ev-

"I've publicly called it a transformative project for Lower Broadway," said Van Campen. "My only issue is to ensure that the infrastructure improvements that are needed to make a project like this a reality are addressed and dealt with."

Like other Boston-area economic development officials, Van Campen views the soccer stadium project as "a job creator and a site that changes the economic landscape of the area, bringing in other uses into that area that has been underutilized for decades." Van Campen lauded DiDomenico's efforts on Beacon Hill in carrying the ball for Everett toward a successful conclusion.

"I want to thank Sen DiDomenico for his work at the State House to make legislation pass,'

THE REVERE BEACH SAND SCULPTING FESTIVAL IS THIS WEEKEND

One of the biggest events of the summer season in the Greater Boston area will take place this weekend when the 20th annual Revere Beach International Sand Sculpting Festival, sponsored by the Revere Beach Partnership (RBP), will transform America's oldest public beach into a world-class exhibition of sand sculptures that will transform Revere Beach Boulevard into a boardwalk with something for everyone, young

The festival, for which the RBP trucks in 420 tons of special sand that is suitable for sand-sculpting, once again will bring together world-renowned sand sculptors from across No. America, Europe, and Asia, who will showcase their incredible talents in a competition that will feature both a judges' trophy and people's choice award. The theme for this year's festival is Wonders of the World.

In addition to the sand sculptures, the festival will feature more than 75 food vendors, including Revere Beach's own superb local restaurants and beachside food stands, plus food trucks, along with exhibitors, live music, interactive activities, amusement rides, fireworks, and a vibrant atmosphere that are sure to create a memorable experience for people of all ages.

The festival is scheduled to take place over the three days of this weekend (July 19-21) from 10-10 on both Friday and Saturday and from 10-8 on Sunday, with the fireworks show taking place at 9:00 on Saturday evening. We would note that for those who might be out of town this weekend, you can check out the sand sculptures on Thursday before the official start of the festival,

Free parking with shuttle buses to the festival is available at Suffolk Downs and parking will be available in the 1800-vehicle Wonderland T garage. For visitors from Boston, it is highly-recommended that they take the Blue Line, which has stops at Revere Beach and Wonderland stations that are a stone's throw away from the beach. In addition, the T has a number of bus routes (the 110, 116, and 117) that travel through East Boston, Chelsea, Everett, and Revere that terminate at Wonderland station.

With a forecast for perfect weather, Revere Beach will be THE place-to-be this weekend for what may well be up to a million visitors. We urge festival-goers to plan ahead and make it a day of fun, great food, and viewing of the amazing sand sculptures that will create memories that are sure to last a lifetime for every member of the family.

PUTIN: THE HITLER OF THE 21ST CENTURY

The horrific bombing recently of Ukraine's largest children's hospital by Russia only adds to the genocidal atrocities being perpetrated upon the people of Ukraine at the direction of Vladimir Putin. The Russian assault on the hospital marked one of the worst days of violence against civilians in months.

The bombing, which targeted a civilian hospital with no military value, not only blatantly violated the rules of war, but also reinforced once again the barbarity of Putin's invasion of that peaceful country.

Putin's deliberate targeting of a children's hospital brings him ever-closer to the pantheon of Europe's 20th century barbarian dictators -- Hitler, Stalin, and Mussloini -- and makes clear that the civilized world must do whatever we can to help the Ukrainian people resist this sociopathic monster of the 21st century.

GORDON CLOSES THE DOORS AT ALLEN'S CUT RATE AFTER A SUCCESSFUL 85-YEAR RUN

CHELSEA - Rick Gordon, who owned and operated Allen's Cut Rate Perfumers on Broadway, has closed the doors of his popular store.

All told the business, started by Rick's father, Jack Gordon, as a franchise, was in existence for 85 years.

"The original location was up the street where the Salvation Army store is now," said Gordon. "My father was there for a number of years. There was a major fire in the late 1940s that destroyed the building, and he ended up at this location at 394 Broadway in 1960. We've been here ever since."

Rick Gordon purchased the Card Gallery, formerly Slade's, located next door at 396 Broadway, in 1993.

Following the passing of his father in 1974, Gordon began working at the store while he was a student at Lexington High on George Street before his family moved to Lexington). In 1985 Rick moved back to Chelsea where he bought a prefabricated home on Spencer Avenue.

"When I was a senior in high school, I came in and helped my mother [Henrietta Gordon] run the business," recalled Rick. "I got a promotion from stock boy to assistant manager. It's a family business, and you just run with it."

Gordon graduated from Suffolk University in 1979 with a degree in accounting. "I hated my major. I should have studied marketing or management, but I was too far into it to change."

A personable, good-natured person, Gordon has always made his presence felt not only in the Broadway business community but as a dedicated member of local organizations such as the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce. "Chelsea was always a blue-collar community where people worked in the community, lived in the community, and many of those people would shop and buy cosmetics and jewelry and other items in the store," related Gordon. "But the retail environment has changed dramatically over the past five years.'

Gordon explained his decision to close the business. "Hey, I'm 67 years old. It was just time to do it. I don't have the same energy I once had.'

Through the years, Gordon gave several students their first part-time job at the store.

"There were several instances where we had brothers and sisters and cousins working here together," said Gordon. "I also hired the children of employees who had worked here in previous years."

Link Health & Neighbor Health unite to bridge the digital divide, empowering Boston's undeserved communities to plug in

Special to the Times-Free Press

In an effort to address the digital divide, Link Health has joined forces with NeighborHealth, formerly East Boston Neighborhood Health Center, on an initiative to expand digital equity and ensure that community health centers are equipped with the necessary tools and resources to better serve their communities. This collaboration introduces significant enhancements for community health centers across Greater Boston. As part of the initiative, Neighbor-Health patients received support from Link Health fellows who received specialized training to address digital inequity. Fellows help patients enroll in the Lifeline program, which offers reduced-cost mobile or home internet access to qualifying individuals. The goal is to enhance and empower community health centers to provide improved healthcare access through advanced digital technolbillion in federal aid that goes untapped annually.

In support of Neighbor-Health's work to address social drivers of health, Link Health is making a charitable gift to the organization's Neighborhood PACE program to support older adults thrive in the community through comprehensive medical care, social activities, transportation and connection to social services and resources, including Internet connection.

To date, Link Health and NeighborHealth have screened over 10,000 patients for federal benefits eligibility and have helped disburse $527,535.00 to families that are part of the NeighborHealth network through initiatives like the Lifeline program internet subsidy benefit, among

ER physician and Link Health Founder, Dr. Alister Martin, underscores the significance of this partnership, stating, "The fact is that modern healthcare is intrinsically linked to internet access. This local partnership will allow us to expand our efforts in connecting Bostonians to critical federal benefits, thereby fostering health equity and digital access among those who need it

"The internet is a vital technological lifeline that allows us to support ourselves and our families, from finding and accessing healthcare, to looking for a job, to ordering groceries," said Mimi Gardner, Vice President and Chief Equity Officer, at NeighborHealth. "When partners like Link Health can help our neighbors and patients overcome financial barriers to unlock the power of the internet - that's a healthcare win."

This initiative is supported by $20 million in new grants awarded by the Healey-Driscoll Administration in collaboration with the Massachusetts Broadband Institute (MBI) through the state's Digital Equity Partnerships Program. Link Health is partnering with the Massachusetts League

Take it down a notch!

ogies and unlock the $80

When chefs cook at home, they don't "take it up a notch." Think about the meaning of that expression. The website "The Idioms" offers this definition. "If you take it up a notch, you increase the effort or intensity exerted in a situation."

In the last few years, chefs have gone public and admitted they "take it down a notch" when they cook at home. After all, at home, they don't have prep cooks who peel, chop, and measure portions. They don't have a team of dishwashers and pot scrubbers to clean up after them. And, while they could have the hundreds of ingredients available in professional kitchens, most of them don't duplicate that pantry at home.

David Chang and the Microwave

Chef David Chang seldom cooked at home. During the lockdown, when he had to cook to feed his family, he found an easier way to do it. He developed new guiding principles "...to create something as delicious as possible, in the least amount of time possible, while making as little mess as possible."

From this experience came the award-winning cookbook he authored with food journalist Priya Krishna: "Cooking at Home: Or, How I Learned to Stop Worrying About Recipes (And Love My Microwave.) It's widely available on local library systems and is a relatively inexpensive ebook.

Entertaining

Some home cooks have always been a bit afraid of entertaining, and posts on social media have increased that fear. Years ago, we learned that something simple, offered in friendship with a side of great conversation, can be the perfect answer.

Penny gave a last-minute dinner invitation to a rather sophisticated gentleman who traveled widely for his work and had been very helpful to her. She cautioned that it would only be a stew she had made the day before. He quickly told her that would be perfect. When he was on the road, dining out with clients, he constantly craved a simple home-cooked meal. The evening was a great success. We found many things we had in common that made for an even better working relationship in the following years.

for entertaining, especially those you can make ahead and keep warm until it's time to serve. Offering comfort food that is familiar and easy to eat can make a guest very happy.

One-pot meals are great

Our advice: relax! Your food does not have to be Instagramable. You are not in a cooking competition. You can get better results by using fewer but better ingredients and cooking simply instead of fancy. Always remember one of David Chang's guiding principles. He explained that when cooking in a restaurant, you always have to hit the bull's-eye. Then he wrote, "Cooking at home, you don't need to hit the bull's-eye, you just need to hit the target."

Boston Harbor releases 'Harborwalk 2.0' toolkit to promote accessible, resilient waterfront design

Boston Harbor Now released Visualizing Harborwalk 2.0, a toolkit for designing a more resilient and equitable waterfront for Greater Boston. Intended for municipal planners, developers, and resident activists, the guide includes core principles and visual examples that will serve as a compass for Boston Harbor Now advocacy around future waterfront development along the Harborwalk.

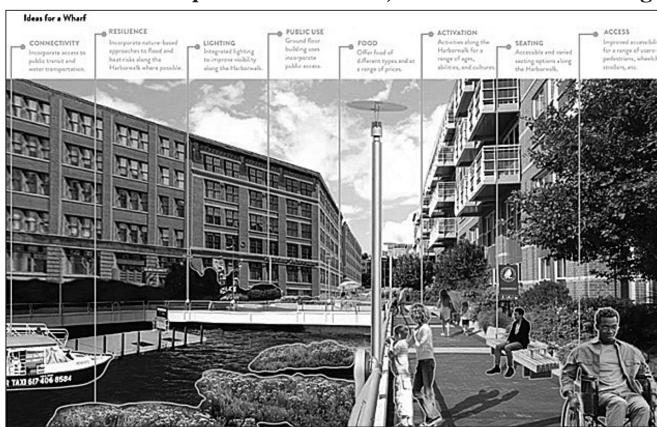

"With this toolkit, we aim to provide both inspiration and interventions for waterfront development in an era of inequitable access, climate change, and flooding," said Kathy Abbott, president and CEO of Boston Harbor Now. "As we regularly weigh in on development projects, the toolkit will provide predictability around the issues we're likely to prioritize – and, as needed, call out – to ensure every new project improves the coastline."

The toolkit begins with a set of goals around waterfront resilience, equity, and access that Boston Harbor Now urges planners and developers to use as a baseline in designing projects, followed by detailed lists of principles that can serve as checklists for urban realm decision-making. These include:

- Implementing a variety of climate adaptation strategies to protect and serve Boston at a district scale.
- Offering entertainment and food at a range of price points; and
- Ensuring the waterfront is visible from inland areas with a design that communicates it is available and open to visitors.

"No single project can fulfill every principle to the fullest, but collectively, we need to ensure we're working together to bring Harborwalk 2.0 to life," said Kelly Sherman, Boston Harbor Now's manager of waterfront design. "Planners and developers face many competing challenges in design, and this toolkit offers potential solutions so that every project is contributing to a more welcoming and resilient waterfront."

The toolkit lays out design scenarios for transforming the waterfront in three common conditions: wharf, seawall, and park. Using the latest data around both flood and heat vulnerability, the toolkit offers visual examples of how, in each scenario, planners and developers can create an equitable and accessible Harborwalk that is responsive to changing climate conditions.

The toolkit was designed by Boston Harbon Now fellow Rocio Alonso in collaboration with the Boston Harbor Now planning and policy team.

MBTA announces Naloxone Pilot to install Narcan access cabinets at five Red Line stations

The MBTA announced the installation of cabinets to support a Public Access Naloxone (Narcan) Pilot on the Red Line. In the coming weeks, Naloxone will be available to the public at Quincy Center, Ashmont, Andrew, South Station, and Harvard.

"It's clear that Narcan saves lives, and we are proud to lead the way as one of the six transit entities that have joined the White House's 'The Challenge to Save Lives from Overdose' initiative. Given the role our stations play in the communities with the thousands that traverse them, it makes them ideal pilot locations to include as part of this project," said MBTA General Manager and CEO Phillip Eng. "Narcan is proven to save lives, and while our Transit Police officers carry Narcan, this pilot will soon make it more readily available at five Red Line stations for any members of the public who understand how to administer it as well. Information regarding Narcan and its use will be prominently displayed alongside the Narcan locations. We thank our state partners for funding this pilot, the Harvard College Overdose Prevention and Education Students for their ideas, Senator Keenan for his support, and the MBTA Policy, Stations, and Red Line Operations teams for their diligent work on deploying these cabinets."

The purpose of this pilot is to increase public access to lifesaving medication that can reverse an opioid overdose, taking advantage of the MBTA's centrally located and well-trafficked transit stations along the Red Line. Three freestanding and unalarmed cabinets containing two doses of Naloxone will be available at each station, along with signage in English, Spanish, and Chinese on how to recognize an opioid overdose, how to administer Naloxone, and how to contact emergency assistance. The cabinets will be installed in the unpaid and paid lobby areas as well as near or inside publicly accessible station restrooms.

MBTA staff will perform routine checks on the cabinets, record-keeping, and maintenance of the cabinets as needed. As a public access pilot. MBTA staff will not receive specialized training or be expected to administer Naloxone. However, local health organizations provide free Naloxone administration training and overdose education and training. The Commonwealth provides information about how to access education and training, and how to access Naloxone via their Harm Reduction Program Locator. Transit Police Officers also currently carry Naloxone and are trained on how to use

The MBTA will share information about the program with community-based organizations within the Red Line service area, including local health organizations, to increase awareness of the availability of Naloxone at Red Line stations and how the public can sign up for free Naloxone administration training.

This program is funded through $95,000 in earmarked funds as part of the Commonwealth's FY24 budget connected to the Department of Public Health's statewide strategy of promoting harm reduction efforts and community-based harm reduction services. The remaining Red Line stations will be evaluated for installation at the end of the pilot phase.

Statements of Support

Department of Public Health Commissioner Robbie Goldstein, MD, PhD

"Overdose deaths are preventable. Making Naloxone more accessible and available where people need it most, including in these Red Line stations, will help save lives. This pilot builds on our public health focus on expanding access to harm reduction resources across Massachusetts."

MA State Senator John Keenan

"This news is exciting on so many levels. First, making Naloxone available will save lives. We are also reducing the stigma associated with helping a person who uses drugs. And we are encouraging public participation in government by highlighting a case where community members saw a need and took action. This plan originated from two Harvard University students, Jay Garg and Sajeev Kohli, who were concerned with overdoses at Red Line stations and came up with an idea to do something about it." (Jay Garg and Sajeev Kohli are part of the Harvard College Overdose Prevention and Education Students who worked to launch this initiative.)

Keagan Yap, on behalf of the HCOPES Team

the HCOPES Team "Harvard College Overdose Prevention and Education Students (HCOPES) is proud to support the MB-TA's Public Access Naloxone program. HCOPES is a student-led initiative that supports data-driven strategies for overdose prevention and harm reduction, and the team has previously worked alongside Massachusetts State Senator John Keenan, the MBTA, and many additional community stakeholders to help bring the program to fruition. HCOPES recognizes the life-saving potential of the Public Access Naloxone program to reduce opioid overdose fatalities and encourages the public to learn more about the program and Naloxone administration."

Cambridge's Chief Public Health Officer Derrick Neal

"The Cambridge Public Health Department (CPHD) has provided guidance to MBTA officials on the implementation of this initiative. Opioid overdose data analyzed by CPHD shows that areas of high foot traffic, such as MBTA stations and surrounding streets, have higher rates of overdose incidents. With that in mind, CPHD commends the MBTA for its work towards making life-saving Naloxone more accessible during overdose emergencies."

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) opened America's first subway tunnel in 1897, pioneering public transportation in the United States. Today, the MBTA is one of the largest public transit systems in the country, operating an extensive network of subway, bus, commuter rail, ferry, and paratransit services across 176 cities and towns. The MBTA is undergoing a transformative period, focusing on cultivating a culture of safety and excellence, modernizing infrastructure, and improving reliability and accessibility. Current priorities include accelerating critical infrastructure repairs, expanding accessibility and reducing emissions The MBTA is committed to providing dependable, frequent, and accessible service that riders can rely on, while supporting the region's economic vitality. Through initiatives like the unprecedented Track Improvement Program and the Bus Network Redesign and Rail Vision, the MBTA aims to connect communities and improve riders' daily experiences and trips. would come in for the holidays. It was a real family business. But that's what families do when you're in the business. Sue's uncle [Ernest Meltzer] actually owned Arnest Jewelers on Broadway."

Susan Gordon brought out the best in her husband, to be sure. The couple attends numerous local events together and their partnership has uplifted Rick's confidence in his numerous abilities and enhanced his life and his enjoyment of it alongside a great companion.

A long-serving member of Rotary Rick Gordon became a member of the Rotary Club in 1981.

"I'm the third-longest member in terms of seniority," said Gordon proudly. "I was an active member. I was an officer in Rotary for a while. I stepped back but got involved again a couple of years ago. I will continue my affiliation with Rotary. There are great people in the club, and they do great work. We've always been members of the Chamber of Commerce."

Gordon was honored by Rotary as a Paul Harris Fellow, and he was president of the club in 1986. He also served in Chelsea city government as a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals and was a member of the advisory board of the Jordan Boys and Girls Club.

"I didn't mind giving back to Chelsea," said Gordon. "I believed that if you're making money in the community, you should give back with your time, money, and volunteerism."

A tribute to Rick Gordon's excellence from a friend Barry Kirshon, a friend and the longtime leader of Kirshon Paint in Chelsea, best summed up Rick Gordon's distinguished career and the highest standards of excellence that Rick elevated to as a business owner and Chelsea resident.

"Rick Gordon and I have been friends for over 40 years," said Kirshon. "We both grew up in and worked for our family's businesses. Rick is a very hard worker and keen businessman who carried on his parents' tradition. He gave back to the community through his contributions to Rotary Club, Main Street Improvements, and the Chamber of Commerce. He was a legend on Broadway and deserves a happy retirement."

EVERY CHILD SHINES INITIATIVE TO HOLD COMMUNITY CONVENING JULY 23

EAST BOSTON - The Every Child Shines initiative is hosting their third annual community convening on Tuesday, July 23, at the Hilton Garden Inn, 100 Boardman St. in East Boston, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This event focuses on how East Boston can best prepare ALL of our neighborhood children for kindergarten. The day will include breakout groups on supporting young children's social emotional development, brainstorming for a Community Hub, and how to collaborate across organicenters, and the Boston Public Schools. This is a unique opportunity where a cross-sector group of over 25 entities including Center-Based and Family Child Care Providers, The Boston Public Schools, NeighborHealth (formerly East Boston Neighborhood Health Center), The Basics, Early Intervention, Families First, Union Capital, and Friends of Boston collaboratively towards this long-term vision for Kindergarten readiness.

Every Child Shines is an initiative of the East Boston Social Centers with the long term goal of establishing an ecosystem where all children enter kindergarten joyful, thriving, and ready to learn. These annual Community Convenings offer an opportunity to pull in perspectives and ideas from across sectors which is critical to making this long-term vision a reality. By coming together in person and meeting with different attendees in structured breakout groups throughout the day, participants get to know what services each other specializes in, relate over shared challenges and ideas, and ultimately improve our collective ability to connect families to useful resources.

The East Boston Social Centers, a multi-service agency and community center that cultivates community, belonging, and joy, has been in the business of changing lives for 106 years, providing East Boston (and Chelsea, Winthrop and Revere) residents with critical high-quality services that support community health, well-being, and joy. The programs offered by the Social Centers are designed to meet people's educational, social, and recreational needs and to build community and strengthen families. As reflected in its motto, "When all give, all gain," the Social Centers seek to create a welcoming and supportive environment, characterized by a spirit of goodwill and caring, in which members of the community are empowered to lead productive and fulfilling lives. TRAFFIC COMM. APPROVES MBTA BUS ROUTE

CHANGES REVERE - The Revere Traffic Commission (RTC) held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, June 20, in the City Councillor Joseph A. Del Grosso Council Chambers of Revere City Hall. City Planner and chair Frank Stringi, DPW Director Chris Ciaramella, City Engineer Nick Rystrom, Police Lieut. Sean Randall, and Fire Chief Chris Bright were on hand for the session. The first matter taken up by the commissioners was a request from Ward 1 City Councillor Joanne McKenna, which appeared on the agenda as follows:

Amend Title 10 – Chapter 12.12.020 by adding:

1. Establish two lanes on Winthrop Avenue, heading towards Broadway, between Lowe Street and Beach Street at Immaculate Conception to provide for a right-turn lane onto Beach Street, left-turn/straight lane for Beach Street and Winthrop Avenue.

2. Establish two lanes on Beach Street from Harrington Street to Winthrop Avenue, heading towards Winthrop Avenue, to provide for a right-turn lane onto Winthrop Avenue, and left-turn/straight lane for Winthrop Avenue and Beach Street.

Hernandez, Arturo

"I'm just asking for some lines and arrows," said McKenna, "The lanes already have been created for the past seven or eight years, so I just want some lines and arrows to separate the cars. I'm just afraid of accidents, so this is a safety concern."

Stringi noted that there will have to be a measurement to see if the roadway is wide enough for two lanes and there probably will be the elimination of some parking. The matter was referred to a public hearing for the next meeting of the commission, at which time Rystrom will present the road measurements to the full commission.

The commissioners then held a public hearing regarding proposed improvements to the MBTA's 110 and 116 bus routes, which had been discussed at the commission's meeting in May. Becca Wolfson and Olivia Mobayed from the MBTA were on hand to answer any questions about the T's Better Bus Network Improvement plans for the 110 and 116 routes. According to the agenda, the proposed changes include:

1. Consolidating stops on the east side of Broadway and moving the stops to the west side;

2. Sidewalk improvements on Broadway at the new bus stop locations;

3. Eliminating the MB-TA's need for the access road at the Central Fire Station.

In addition, there would be updated signalization for the traffic lights at intersections that would allow buses to proceed more expeditiously on their routes. Bright expressed concerns about locating a bus stop across from the fire station and Stringi raised issues about the net loss of two parking spaces in the area of Park St. and Broadway.

Tom Skwierawski, the city's Chief of Planning and Community Development, spoke in favor of the plan. "Revere is one of a handful of communities that will be among the first to adopt the Better Bus Network," he said. "We want to ensure that we are doing our part to improve the bus transportation system that will reduce traffic in the city."

Skwierawksi suggested a trial period to see how the proposals work out and then revisit the changes. "The MBTA has been a great partner with us and they are willing to work with us," he said. After a somewhat lengthy discussion, with the commissioners asking many questions about the details of the plan, they voted unanimously in favor of the T's proposals on a pilot basis for six months, with a preliminary check-in within three months. The changes will go into effect on December 1.

The commission then took up amendments to Schedule XI of Title 10, "Handicapped Person Parking." by adding 23 Bates Street and by removing 136 Proctor Avenue, both of which they approved unanimously.

Next up was a public hearing to Amend Title 10, Sections 10.32.210 -10.32.211 to allow parking of vehicles with pupil plates not to exceed six passengers in all areas except areas that are currently 24/7 resident parking. Ward 4 City Councillor Paul Argenzio spoke in favor of the proposal, noting that two constituents who have passenger vehicles with pupil plates have approached him about making the change. The commission tabled the amendment pending an opinion from City Parking Director Zach Babo as to whether he foresees any issues with enforcement. The commission then voted to amend Schedule XXIII of Title 10, "Tow Away Zones - Off Street Parking Areas," by adding:

"Gibson Park – both sides - Time of Towing 8:00 p.m. to 8:00 a.m., 7 days a week - Tow Zone" and to amend Schedule VIII of Title 10, "Restrictions Generally," by adding: "Gibson Park - Two Hour Parking during the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m., 7 days a week."
