Early Nomination Papers reveal some surprises in Council, School Committee

By Seth Daniel

Former City Councilor Cynthia Sarnie is intending to run for School Committee, while Ward 2 Councilor Steve Simonelli has pulled papers for at-large Council, and Councilor Anthony DiPierro has ended the rumors by announcing he is 100 percent committed to running for re-election.

All that came this week as Monday was the first day that potential candidates could pull Nomination Papers with the intention of running for City Council or School Committee.

This City Election season, virtually every seat is up for grabs as the city undergoes one of the most crucial years in its history with the Encore Boston Harbor casino set to open in June – not to mention turmoil in the once-solid School Department, opening up School Committee seats that were virtually closed off to anyone for decades.

Candidate must get 250 signatures on the Papers and return them to the Election Commission to be considered for the ballot. Once those signatures of registered voters are confirmed, the Commission will certify a candidate for the ballot in either the September Preliminary or the November City Election.

•School Committee

So far, there has only been one surprise on the School Committee in what many expected would be a wide open race.

That surprise is former City Councilor Sarnie filing her papers for at-large School Committee. After losing her Council seat last fall very narrowly, Sarnie has maintained her presence at City and community events and appears to be ready to take on the School Committee.

Another newcomer in the at-large field is Richard Liston, who lives on Cottage Street.

At-large Incumbents Berardino D'Onofrio and Millie Cardello have also pulled papers.

In Ward 1, Edgar Ruiz of Lewis Street in the Triangle has pulled papers – potentially challenging incumbent Allen Panarese.

Three alleged Brazilian gang members rounded up in Everett

By Seth Daniel

Federal agents descended upon Everett, Malden and other locales April 25 to arrest 14 members of a violent Brazilian street gang – with one member being apprehended in the garage of Councilor Wayne Matewsky.

Members and associates of Primeiro Comando da Massachussetts (PCM) – most of whom were in the country illegally – were charged April 25 in federal court in Boston in connection with perpetrating violent crimes in Massachusetts, including drug and firearms trafficking, robberies and kidnappings.

Three members were apprehended in Everett, including one on Lewis Street, another on Vernal Street and a third on Hancock Street.

“Violent gangs that proliferate violence are a scourge on our communities,” said United States Attorney Andrew E. Lelling. “Over recent months, members and associates of Primeiro Comando da Massachussetts have been committing serious, violent crimes:

brazenly robbing community businesses, dealing drugs, trafficking illegal firearms, and even kidnapping a young woman. We will not stand by and allow these criminals to disrupt the safety and peace of our communities. Let today’s arrests and charges be a message to gang members and their associates: if you threaten the safety and well-being of Massachusetts residents, we will arrest and prosecute you using all of the federal resources at our disposal.”

On Thursday morning, federal agents and State Police swarmed the City, particularly on Lewis Street at the home of Councilor Matewsky. Officers located Joao Pedro Marques Guimares Gama, a/k/a “Bahianinho,” 21, in Matewsky’s garage, and took him into custody.

Police said it appeared he had been living there for about a week.

Matewsky said he had no idea that the man was in his garage, and that he had hired him to do some work in the yard – as he is transforming his backyard from hardscape

License Commission revokes Winners Bar & Grill liquor license

By Seth Daniel

Winners was a big loser Monday night at City Hall.

The recently-renovated bar and grill on Ferry Street was found by the License Commission to have violated its last-chance agreement with the Board – and the result was a 2-1 vote to strip the venue of its liquor license as of May 13.

In a contentious meeting where the Board had clearly been pushed beyond its limits of toleration, owner Tony Portillo and his attorney, John Mackey, asked for another chance to operate the new sports bar – which Portillo said is underwater in debt.

“Tony has complete and utter disregard for this Board

Roll On: MGC clears Wynn Resorts

Despite fines, troubling behavior identified, MGC allows casino, Maddox to move forward for opening

By Seth Daniel

The Massachusetts Gaming Commission (MGC), despite finding a troubling pattern in the Wynn Resorts leadership in the past and present, agreed to let the casino operators remain in control of their Everett project – clearing the way for a planned June opening with licenses, and CEO Matt Maddox, intact.

The decision came down on Tuesday evening after more than two weeks of deliberation by the MGC Commissioners. Those deliberations had followed an intense week of hearings April 2-4 at the South Boston Convention Center, as well as a year-long investigation by the MGC. The 54-page decision laid out the stipulations of the decision, including a $35 million punishment for the company and a $500,000 punishment for CEO Matt Maddox – who remained suitable in a majority Commission vote that was not unanimous.

The $35 million fine was far larger – nearly double – the fine levied by the Nevada Gaming and Control Board in February when they fined Wynn $20 million for similar breaches there.

The great silver lining for the Wynn organization, however, was the first finding, which determined that no one in the Wynn organization intentionally provided false or misleading information to the MGC in 2013.

“...the Commission has determined that Wynn MA LLC, Wynn Resorts Limited, Matthew Maddox, Elaine Wynn and Patricia Mulroy remain suitable, subject to fines and conditions set forth in this decision, and all new qualifiers are deemed suitable,” read the decision. “While the Commission did not find substantial evidence that the company or any qualifier willfully provided false or misleading in-

Former Supt. Fred Foresteire pleads not guilty on seven counts

By Seth Daniel

Former Supt. Fred Foresteire pleaded not guilty to seven counts of assault on teachers in the Everett Public Schools in Malden District Court on Friday, April 26.

With his attorney, Gerard Malone, and an entourage that included his wife, Dorothy, and several community members at his side, Foresteire stepped up from the audience to the microphone Friday morning to say he was not guilty of the charges leveled against him, which include six counts of indecent assault and battery and one count of assault and battery. The charges were brought earlier this year, and Foresteire was only just now arraigned on those charges – which followed a lengthy Everett Police investigation.

Among the charges described at the arraignment were “mouth on breast,” “hand on buttocks,” and “pulling clothes down to expose the body.” There are three victims making the allegations.

Judge Benjamin Barnes presided over the arraignment session and let Foresteire, 76, go on his own personal recognizance – meaning no bail was imposed. He was ordered not to have any contact with victims or witnesses, and not to go near school property or school events.

Attorney Malone told the Independent they had no additional comment for the moment on the charges, and Foresteire walked out of the courthouse silently while swarmed by television reporters from Boston.

He did not speak at the arraignment either.

Attorney Malone did ask for permission for himself, and his investigator, to get entry into the School Administration Building so that they could see where the allegations were made.

While the prosecution objected on principle, Judge Barnes allowed them access with 48-hours notice.

All of the information regarding the charges was impounded from the public by Judge Barnes, a move to protect the alleged victims from public disclosure.

A Pre-Trial hearing was established for Aug. 8, which would be Foresteire’s next official court date.

SUPPORT SEN. MARKEY'S EFFORT TO BAN ROBOCALLS

Robocalls are the new plague of the digital and cell phone era.

According to some estimates, Americans received 48 billion robocalls last year, up from 30 billion in 2017. It used to be that only a person's land line would be subject to telemarketers, but these days our wireless phones also are being deluged on a daily basis with these annoying phone calls from robocall centers that typically operate from overseas.

The latest nuance in the robocalling game is spoofing, whereby a robocall essentially hijacks a local phone number, tricking the receiver of the phone call into thinking that the call is coming from someone in one's hometown.

No one is immune from the scourge of pre-recorded robocalls trying to scam us out of our money. And the calls seem to never stop coming. The deluge of these robocalls have become the number one complaint of Americans who have a phone line -- which is to say, just about all of us.

Robocalls have become an epidemic that must be stopped and to that end, U.S. Sen. Ed Markey has introduced a bill, known as the TRACED Act, that will give authorities and the telecom companies the ability to find, catch, and prosecute scammers.

The TRACED Act gives the FCC the authority to levy civil penalties against scammers, extends the window from one to three years to take action against intentional violators, and requires telephone providers to adopt call authentication technologies to verify that incoming calls are legitimate.

This bill already has overwhelming bipartisan support -- one of the few things that Republicans and Democrats can agree upon these days -- and recently passed a Senate committee by a 26-0 margin.

Each of us can show our solidarity behind ending the scourge of robocalls by calling Senator Markey's office to become a citizen co-sponsor of the TRACED Act.

Let our elected officials know that the sooner Congress takes action, the better.

WILL APRIL SHOWERS BRING MAY FLOWERS?

As Bob Dylan noted, 'you don't need a weatherman to tell you which way the wind is blowing.' Similarly, we have not needed a weatherman to tell us that this has been a particularly rainy April.

However, we learned this week just how rainy it has been with the news that this April has set the record for the most days with rain. The previous record had been 19 days, set in 1912. However, as this is being written, we are poised to attain a new mark of 21 days with rain.

We hasten to point out that this has not been the wettest April. Although total rainfall is more than three inches above normal for the month, it still is well below a record-setting total.

Yes, the mild temperatures have been nice -- this April reportedly is in the top 10 for warmest-ever -- but with all of that the wind and rain, especially coming off the ocean, we have not been able to enjoy the warmth as much as we would have liked.

Hopefully, the old song about April showers bringing May flowers will be predictive of the month ahead. So we thought it would be appropriate to publish a verse from that old song, which has been around since the 1920s:

*Though April showers may come your way
They bring the flowers that bloom in May
So if it's raining have no regrets
Because it isn't raining rain you know, it's raining violets
And where you see clouds upon the hills
You soon will see crowds of daffodils
So keep on looking for a blue bird
And list'ning for his song
Whenever April showers come along*

CELEBRATE MAY DAY ALL MONTH LONG

GUEST OP-ED

Fighting the opioid epidemic with care and data

By Alexander Acosta

A little more than a year ago, I had the opportunity to visit Maryhaven treatment facility in Columbus, Ohio, to hear from those recovering from the effects of addiction. The visit was an impactful one. I met with individuals who talked about the terrible impact addiction had on their families. I heard from employers looking to offer a second chance to those in need. I heard from both about the importance of job skills and having a job in recovery.

With National [prescription] Take Back Day this week, the Department of Labor released new information on what we have learned about the opioid crisis and how we are improving our effectiveness in overcoming its challenges.

In 2017, President Donald Trump's administration declared the opioid epidemic a national public health emergency and directed all executive agencies to use every appropriate emergency authority to minimize the devastation. Since 2017, the U.S. Department of Labor's

Office of Workers' Compensation Programs' (OWCP) has dedicated significant resources to stem the abuse, misuse, and proliferation of opioids to protect 2.7 million federal workers from harmful opioid prescription practices.

The use of opioids to treat injured federal workers continued, virtually unchecked, until 2017. The capability to monitor dose level and duration by the department was not even available until operational changes were instituted that year. Since we started this effort, a series of successes can be attributed to the implementation of a four-point strategic plan: (1) effective controls, (2) tailored treatment, (3) impactful communications with employees and providers, and (4) aggressive fraud detection.

The strategic plan's core challenge is a process where the department continuously gathers information and analyzes data. The results yielded great progress:

- 51 percent decline in new opioid prescriptions that last more than 30 days;
- 59 percent decline in claimants prescribed a morphine equivalent dose (MED) of 500 or more;
- 31 percent decline in claimants prescribed a MED of 90 or more;
- 30 percent decline in overall opioid use; and
- 24 percent drop in new opioid prescriptions

A recent study highlights the unique challenges facing a legacy population of injured federal workers who have been prescribed opioids over an extended period of time. Specifically, the study showed that nearly 1 in 4 injured workers in this group had been prescribed a high dose of 90+ morphine equivalent dose. This is important because the higher the opioid dose, the higher the risk for misuse and overdose death. Higher doses, greater than 100 MED, have more than two times the risk relative to lower doses. Additional risk factors, including the use of extended-release opioids and the associated use of certain interacting medications, were also identified.

The legacy challenges needed to be confronted. All federal injured workers with a prescription of 90+ MED underwent extensive individual case reviews. Treating physicians were contacted and, as needed, nurses were assigned. Our goal was to work with the medical provider and injured worker to provide opioid treatment where needed, reduce the opioid risk level, and assist in securing the Tapering an addictive drug takes time and there are a host of interacting factors to consider, yet as the statistics prove, the intense focus produced a real difference. This effort is not the federal government deciding what is best for patients. Rather, the federal government is acting as a responsible employer by caring about its workforce and ensuring that employees are getting the treatment and support needed for what can be a challenging recovery.

We are committed to (1) engaging individual employees and (2) analyzing the effects on the employee population as a whole. To win this battle, we must embrace a strategy that pursues accurate information, continuously evaluates that information, and invests the time necessary to find the right, healthy solutions for individuals struggling with opioids.

Alexander Acosta is the 27th U.S. Secretary of Labor.

SEN. DIDOMENICO MEETS WITH BOSTON CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL LEADERSHIP TEAM

Last week, Sen. Sal DiDomenico attended the Boston Children's Hospital State House Breakfast. While there, Sen. DiDomenico met with constituents and the hospital's leadership team, including CEO Sandra Fenwick and President Kevin Churchwell about their legislative priorities. Three of the Senator's bills are priorities for the hospital this session. These bills will extend health care benefits to newborns, study children with medical complexities, and close the SNAP Gap. The Boston Children's Hospital hosts their State House Breakfast biannually with the purpose of educating legislators of what the hospital does and advocating for their legislative priorities. This year, Boston Children's Hospital celebrated their 150th Anniversary.

Encore Boston Harbor files for permits to build critical pedestrian/cycle bridge

By Seth Daniel

The Encore Boston Harbor team has filed with state environmental regulators (known as MEPA) in order to begin permitting of the $32 million pedestrian/cycle bridge over the Mystic River – a bridge that is a key connection to Boston for bike paths stretching all the way to Lynn and the North Shore.

The project includes the construction of a 12-foot wide pedestrian and bicycle bridge over the Lower Mystic River, with the goal of connecting the Everett and Somerville communities – as well as connecting the Encore casino directly to the Orange Line station at Assembly Row.

“If successful in procuring the permits and approvals necessary to construct the project, the proponent, in coordination with the DCR, plan to initiate construction in early 2020 and complete the project within 18 months,” read the letter to MEPA.

Other nearby projects that are also anticipated to go in tandem with the bridge include the construction of a pedestrian connection to the Orange Line, completion of recreational/pedestrian components of Draw 7 Park in Somerville, and a pedestrian/bicycle path on the MBTA Charlestown bus yard shoreline stabilization project.

“The recently completed Encore Boston Harbor HarborWalk, and the planned connection to the DCR Gateway Park will provide critical links at the two landing points of the bridge,” read the letter.

The project, while under the jurisdiction of DCR, would be paid for mostly by Encore Boston Harbor – which also paid for a good amount of the design of the bridge.

Encore has not said how much exactly they will pay on the bridge project but have indicated several times that it is a very significant amount of the total cost.

The bridge is expected to connect Charlestown, Everett and Somerville in a way that – to date – they have never been connected before.

“Existing pedestrian connectivity is limited and circuitous in the Lower Mystic region,” read the letter. “The only existing pedestrian connection across the Mystic River in the area is on Alford Street Bridge, which spans from Sullivan Square in (Charlestown) to Lower Broadway in Everett. Currently, an individual at Assembly Station is required to walk more than 1.4 miles, approximately 35 minutes, to access the Lower Broadway business district via the Alford Street Bridge. This is the shortest existing pedestrian route between these two places. Given the lack of pedestrian connectivity in the Lower Mystic are, few people make this trip by foot today.”

The bridge is planned to be built in one phase, but it will require a great deal of environmental scrutiny due to it going over the River and utilizing new pillars into the riverbed.

DIDOMENICO’S BILL TO LIFT THE CAP ON KIDS BECOMES LAW

Last week, the Massachusetts Legislature took the final steps needed to end the state’s family cap policy by overwhelmingly voting to reject a Governor veto and enact Sen. Sal DiDomenico’s legislation to lift the Cap on Kids.

The Cap on Kids– also called the “family cap”– denies benefits to children conceived while, or soon after, a family began receiving benefits. As a result of the Cap on Kids, Massachusetts does not provide benefits for nearly 9,000 children living in poverty. Their parents struggle to provide even the most basic essentials for their children, causing everyone in the family to suffer.

“Lifting the ‘Cap on Kids’ is simply the right thing to do to ensure that families are not denied basic benefits simply because of when their children were born,” said Assistant Majority Leader Sal DiDomenico. “I have heard many personal accounts from families who have been hurt by this cap on kids– parents who struggle to meet their families’ basic needs because of this policy. Today, I am proud to say that we have put an end to this ineffective and unjust policy and show that we value all children equally, regardless of the circumstances of their birth.”

This was the sixth time the Massachusetts Senate took bipartisan action to pass DiDomenico’s policy proposal. This session, legislation to lift the Cap on Kids was a top priority for the Massachusetts Senate, with the Senate passing DiDomenico’s bill in March and also including the family cap repeal in its FY19 supplemental budget. In his remarks on the Senate floor, DiDomenico thanked his colleagues for their support and expressed his gratitude to Senate President Karen Spilka for her ongoing commitment to repeal the Cap on Kids: “This is a critical policy change that will help thousands of children across the Commonwealth, and I would like to especially thank Senate President Spilka for continuing to make this a Senate priority and addressing this issue at the very beginning of our session.”

Massachusetts’ ‘Cap on Kids’ policy was established in 1995 and has been detrimental to families across the state. Since filing this legislation, Senator DiDomenico has passionately disputed certain erroneous assumptions about our Commonwealth’s low-income families: “The facts are crystal clear - this policy hurts our children which is why so many states have already taken action to repeal their family cap policies. For over two decades, the Cap on Kids has done nothing but move us backward and make it harder for low income families to meet their basic needs, such as food, housing, and warm clothes.”

The new policy begins on September 1, 2019. The repeal of the family cap is also retroactive to January 1, 2019. Upon implementation, children who are, or would be, excluded from grant calculations will now be included. The fiscal year 2019 budget already provides funding for this change, which was included in the House and Senate conference committee report.

Sen. Sal DiDomenico celebrates that the Massachusetts Legislature took the final steps needed to end the state’s family cap policy by overwhelmingly voting to reject a Governor veto and enact DiDomenico’s legislation to lift the Cap on Kids.

Pope John High School hosts rally to garner fundraising support

By Cary Shuman

Pope John XXIII High School Principal Thomas Mahoney stood outside the school auditorium welcoming alumni, parents, and students to a rally Monday night.

Mahoney said because of International Residential Management [IRM] not fulfilling its financial obligations to the school for its placement of international students, Pope John needs to raise approximately $1.5 million by a deadline of May 23. The school has to show the Archdiocese of Boston that it is a viable institution financially moving forward.

"We're here to rally support from alumni and let the parents know what's going on," said Mahoney.

Athletic Director Paul Sobolewski, who is leading the fundraising effort with Director of Advancement Kelley Mulvihill, said the school had raised more than $50,000 in donations to-date.

State Rep. Joseph McGonagle, a Class of 1977 Pope John graduate, was the first of several speakers to address the large gathering.

"I'm very sad to see the news about the school [closing]," said McGonagle, adding that he received an outstanding education as a Pope John student back in the 1970s. "I applaud everybody for giving their donations to try to save this school."

McGonagle said he intends to write a letter to Attorney General Maura Healey "to start a lawsuit against this company [IRM] that has refused to pay for the international students."

"I believe she [Healey] will help us and fight for us to restore Pope John High School back to its glory days," said McGonagle.

City Councillor Michael

Principal Thomas Mahoney and sophomore Gavin Kelly outside the school auditorium before the rally.

McLaughlin said he wanted to show his support to the school. "This school has stood for 50-plus years and that is remarkable it has been her for so long," said McLaughlin. "It's brought so many great victories for our community and so many wonderful people have come out of this school and gone on to do so many great things."

McLaughlin said he and fellow city councillor, Fred Capone, a Pope John parent, intend to reach out Wednesday to Encore Boston Harbor as a potential major donor.

"They [Encore] have brought so much good, positive community feeling to Everett and the surrounding communities and this school is not just about Everett, it's about the state of Massachusetts and that's what Encore has represented from the beginning."

"I'm sure if they hear the story of what is happening here on this hill, they'll be more than happy to be able to support whatever they can do make partners to see the school move forward," said McLaughlin.

Head of School Carl DiMaiti said he has enjoyed his position at Pope John after a brilliant administrative career at St. Mary's High School of Lynn where his two children, Drew and Carol, were exceptional student-athletes.

"I've been part of the Pope John school community for three years," said DiMaiti. "Initially I was supposed to be here for one year, but the school community is so accepting, so exceptional that I made a commitment to stay as long as the Board of Trustees would have me here."

DiMaiti said he was proud of the school's faculty and staff "by the way they've reacted to what is really a crisis situation."

"The students have also done a remarkable job," he added.

DiMaiti has contacted alumni and believes the school community can raise "the large amount of money by May 23. I'm absolutely convinced we can do it."

Two of Pope John's current students, junior Sarita Chen and senior Mekhi Collins, also spoke at the rally.

"As a junior, it's upsetting to find out that you may not graduate with the people you early in his life helped him to go on achieve in the classroom and on the basketball court.

"Bringing the first-ever basketball state championship was an honor for us," said Collins. "I've never felt the whole school support like I witnessed last year. I've never seen a school so tightly knitted until I got to Pope John. I've never felt so part of a school family until I got to Pope John."

Collins said he will be the first person from his family to attend college and he's grateful to the Pope John faculty for helping him attain his goals.

"I can't thank Pope John enough and I can't thank everyone who has been a part of my Pope John experience enough. My heart will always reside at 888 Broadway, Everett, Mass."

Sobolewski, who led Pope John to the Super Bowl in December, said he was one of four siblings to have attended the school.

"I can't tell you what the school has meant to us," said Sobolewski. "It's really paved the way for our future and our careers."

He said the school is starting a corporate campaign to secure funds "for our immediate needs and future endowment fund."

Mulvihill said alumni and parents can follow the school's fundraising drive on the school Website.

"We are so grateful to all of you," said Mulvihill. "We can't thank you all enough for having the passion for Pope John that you have."

A question and answer period followed the rally, during which DiMaiti assured parents that if the school remains open, it will offer all of the athletic and academic programs that currently exist at the school.

Everett couple fulfills dream, challenge in Walk for Hunger

By Seth Daniel

Both Michael McLaughlin and Patty Frati would never have considered they could walk the 20-mile Walk for Hunger only a few years ago, but this Sunday, May 5, they will begin the walk on Boston Common, and hopefully, finish 20 miles later on the Common.

The Walk for Hunger is the oldest long-distance charity walk in the country, celebrating its 51st year this weekend. The walk raises money for Project Bread, which directly funds food pantries and meals locations throughout Greater Boston – including Everett.

"The night before the Marathon, we went to see the finish line in the Back Bay and walked back to Everett," said Frati. "Then Mike suggested that maybe we should walk the 20-mile Walk for Hunger, but I thought he was just kidding. Later, he said he was serious. The walk really wasn't that bad and I love to walk and am taking this as a personal challenge. Beyond that, we volunteer at the Grace Food Pantry in Everett and see the need. There are so many people without access to food, this is the least we could do to help."

Added McLaughlin, who is an Everett city councilor,

"This helps so much because so many people struggle with food insecurity. We have learned that one in 10 people have to decide between their medications or food. Hunger is something that people in all of our communities face. We felt this was something meaningful we could do... I'm going to run the 5K race and then 30 minutes later begin the 20-mile walk."

Both have become Heart & Soul Sponsors of this year's walk, which means they have committed to raising $500 each.

The fact that they can make the walk is actually astounding for both, though.

McLaughlin shared that only two years ago he was not healthy enough to walk such a distance, but that has completely changed as he has lost hundreds of pounds since 2017.

"Only two years ago, I didn't think there was any way I could walk that distance ever again," he said. "As many know in the community, I decided to have gastric bypass surgery and it has been a life-changing event as I have lost more than 200 pounds to date. It has opened up new opportunities for me. A few years ago, I couldn't imagine doing a 20-mile walk. Every day now, I'm able to run, go to the gym and live a healthy, active life. It was only due to the support of my family, friends and girlfriend, Patty, that I have been able to change my life. Now I think it's time to use that change to support and help others."

Frati said she, too, would not have considered the walk an option as recently as last summer.

"I really love walking and I even keep a pedometer on as I walk around work," she said. "It is my passion, but even this past summer I went through my own personal medical issue. It's a great challenge to know I can do this – to be able to walk this distance and help others at the same time."

Both said they are very excited and hope more Everett residents will join them in Sunday's walk. Registration can be made on the day of the walk on the Boston Common for $25. Those who do not want to walk but would like to support McLaughlin and Frati on their walk can do so online at the Project Break Walk for Hunger website.

"I think it would be great if we had a lot of people from Everett make the trip and walk for this cause," said McLaughlin. "Just three years ago, neither one of us would have thought we could do this, and now here we are excited and ready to complete the Walk for Hunger."

DAs file case demanding end to federal immigration enforcement in courthouses

Staff Report

Middlesex County District Attorney Marian Ryan, Suffolk County District Attorney Rachael Rollins, the Committee for Public Counsel Services (CPCS), and the Chelsea Collaborative filed a groundbreaking lawsuit April 29 demanding an end to federal immigration enforcement in and around Massachusetts courthouses.

For the last two years, officers from U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) have frequented Massachusetts courthouses, surveilling, arresting and detaining immigrants, the plaintiffs asserted. The degree to which these civil arrests are occurring in courthouses is unprecedented in American history and have severely undermined the administration of justice and access to judicial redress in the Commonwealth, they said.

Entire communities now view the Massachusetts courts as places at which they simply cannot appear. Civil plaintiffs and criminal defendants cannot resolve their cases without risking detention and deportation. Witnesses do not appear in court out of fear of immigration arrest and deportation making legal proceedings and prosecutions more difficult. Victims of domestic violence seeking restraining orders against their abusers cannot access basic life-saving protections without exposing themselves to immigration enforcement. ICE's policy has effectively closed the courthouse door to immigrants and made us all unsafe in the process.

To combat this disruptive practice, representatives are joining together from all sides of the judicial system – including prosecutors and public defenders. The District Attorneys' Offices, public defenders, and community groups such as the Chelsea Collaborative have all borne the brunt of ICE's illegal and unconstitutional arrest policy – and are now uniting to stop it.

"ICE's using state courthouses as a forum to conduct their enforcement work has struck fear in many of our most vulnerable, keeping them from accessing our courts. That is not justice. It does not make our communities safer. What is clear to me is that in order to make meaningful and positive change, we all need to work together. This lawsuit represents the first time that prosecutors, public defenders and advocates have filed a lawsuit with the goal of formally ending this practice. As our country wrestles with the complex problem of the state of the American immigration system, we cannot permit access to the courts of this Commonwealth by all of its residents to be detrimentally affected," said District Attorney Ryan.

"Our criminal justice system can only function properly when people feel safe coming to court. When victims, witnesses, and defendants fear that entering a courthouse could place them at risk of immigration consequences, it prevents us as prosecutors from securing justice for the people we serve," District Attorney Rollins said. "Initiating a federal civil deportation prior to a criminal defendant being held accountable for the harm they caused in Suffolk County does nothing to serve the interest of justice or public safety. Instead, it creates an environment of fear and mistrust, and harms our entire community."

"Federal ICE agents have been regularly stalking our state courthouses in communities throughout Massachusetts for the last two years. When criminal defendants, witnesses and civil litigants are arrested by ICE before their cases are resolved or avoid the courthouses because of fear of ICE arrest, access to justice is denied for everyone," said Wendy Wayne, Director of the CPCS Immigration Impact Unit.

CPCS, which is responsible for all indigent criminal defense in the Commonwealth, can no longer effectively represent their immigrant clients who fear ICE arrest or defend their clients when noncitizen witnesses refuse to come to court.

"This lawsuit provides a powerful blueprint for advocates across the country who want to protect access to the courts and to judicial redress," said Ivan Espinoza-Madrigal, Executive Director of Lawyers for Civil Rights.

The lawsuit seeks a declaration from the court that ICE's policy and practice of arresting people while coming to, attending, or returning from court is illegal. The suit also asks the court to immediately enjoin ICE from conducting any more courthouse arrests.

The District Attorneys and the Chelsea Collaborative are represented pro bono by Goodwin Procter LLP. The Chelsea Collaborative is also represented by Lawyers for Civil Rights. The CPCS Immigration Impact Unit is representing CPCS.

City of Everett to host Kids to Parks Day on Saturday, May 18

On Saturday, May 18, at 11 a.m. Mayor Carlo DeMaria and the City of Everett will host the third Annual Kids to Parks Day at Swan Street Park. Kids to Parks Day is a national day of outdoor play organized by National Park Trust in cooperation with thirty national collaborators.

To empower kids and encourage families to get outdoors and visit parks the DeMaria administration has organized the event for a third consecutive year.

The event will include a bouncy house, inflatable obstacle course, face painters, balloon twisters, and demonstrations from the Everett Health and Wellness Center on fun games that can be played at all parks. The Everett Fire and Police Departments will also be in attendance.

Mayor DeMaria stated, "This is a great day and opportunity to invite the youth of Everett and their families to one of our City's newly renovated parks and connect them to our community. I want to help families engage their kids with local parks and green spaces and empower them to explore the outdoors."

The National Park Trust indicated that they reached their goal of 1- million participants. Kids to Parks Day 2018 included more than 1,700 park events nationwide and over 450 mayors and elected officials proclaimed the day Kids to Parks Day.

Mayor DeMaria would like to urge all residents to mark your calendars for this important event. The Mayor wants to continue the movement that encourages children in the City to explore parks and discover nature and adventure right around the corner or just across town.

Arts organization to present first annual Everett Community Art Walk

Integral Arts Everett is proud to present the first annual Everett Community Art Walk, a temporary art exhibit that will be on display throughout various city locations.

Artwork from local artists will be sprinkled all across the city in local businesses and community organizations, and visitors are invited to explore the city during the month of October to discover them all. The exhibit will be free and open to the public and will be suitable for all ages.

With more than 20 organizations ready to host over 50 pieces of artwork, the Everett Community Art Walk is poised to present an engaging art adventure, while showcasing local artists and boosting traffic to local businesses.

Karyn Alzayer, founder and Board President of Integral Arts Everett says of the project, "We don't have many arts spaces in Everett, but that doesn't mean we don't deserve great arts events here. So we thought we'd bring the art out to the community instead. It will be kind of like a scavenger hunt, with the public invited to explore local businesses, connect with local art, and engage with the community. We're hoping to get folks invested in all that Everett has to offer."

Some of the artwork will be displayed in front windows and will be visible from the street, and for other pieces, visitors will have to search inside local businesses to find it.

With the goal of welcoming participants age 14 and up, Integral Arts Everett is also working to encourage Everett students to apply. Ward 5 School Committee Member Marcony Almeida-Barros, who has been lending his support to the project, says, "We all know that there are many talented individuals within our schools and community, and the Everett Art Walk is an excellent opportunity for our students, parents, and the whole community of artists in Everett to showcase their talents and artwork."

Artist applications will be open through 7/1/2019. See Integral Arts Everett's website at everettcommunityartwalk.blogspot.com/p/join-us.html or email us at integralartseverett@gmail.com to apply.

The Everett Community Art Walk is supported in part by a grant from the Everett Cultural Council, a local agency which is supported by the Mass Cultural Council, a state agency.

Getting Out

Chelsea Apollinaire Theatre makes music, laughter, mystery, and the occult in ‘The Strange Undoing of Prudencia Hart’

By Sheila Barth

The atmosphere is festive, electric, as we enter Apollinaire Theater Company’s lobby. Were quickly relegated inside the theater, where some theatergoers are seated at tables on the stage floor. We’re in seats, nearby.

Sporting a Scottish accent in this Scottish pub-musical theater atmosphere, Boston-Apollinaire standout actor-director Brooks Reeves warmly circulates among us, chatting. He has instructions for us, too.

When he signals our group, we’re to shout out, “What the devil, Kaylie!”

The production is totally interactive. Individual theatergoers perform simple tasks, and the cast chats frequently with individuals, oftentimes making eye-contact, standing nearby or running through theatergoers’ rows, keeping everyone alert.

Obviously, this two-act, two-hour production of David Greig’s rollicking award-winning play, “The Strange Undoing of Prudencia Hart,” isn’t a typical musical, comedy or drama. It’s a fun fest, with the group playing music and singing throughout the play, laced with Scottish ditties, inescapable supernatural overtones, mystery, and allure.

Theatergoers are instantly swept into the beer-sloshing, sing-along communal camaraderie. Boston-area music-sound director David Reiffel shines his spotlight on these individuals as they continue their tale, transforming the nine-strong musician-actors into a Greek ensemble.

’Tis a dark, scary one, indeed.

The first act is noisy, with kitchen-style musicians-narrators popping up here and there. Besides a literary competition, Prudencia’s evening devolves into a debauched orgy, horrifying her and us, too.

Brilliant, uptight 28-year-old single academic, Prudencia Hart, of Edinburgh, sets off for Kelso, Scotland, in the Scottish Borders, to attend an academic conference there. Also attending is her literary adversary, Colin Syme (multi-talented Brooks Reeves), riding his human-formed motorcycle there. He has a hidden goal. Colin hopes to romance the bookish Prudencia.

She doesn’t waver from her academic goal, though. She’s an ardent researcher of Sir Walter Scott and an “expert” on “the topography of Hell” in literature. She’s also unaware she may come closer than comfortable to the devil and his lair.

As Prudencia is ensnared in a raucous, drug-and-liquor fueled karaoke experience, she runs out, into the snow-driven, cold, to get away.

Searching for her car in a parking lot, she realizes it’s buried under three feet of snow. Colin’s motorcycle is, too. Creating credibility here, patrons seated on the stage floor are showered with man-made snow.

Spooky, spectral encounters are afoot, too.

Prudencia and Colin can’t return home, so he tries to find a reasonably priced B&B. Luckily -for him-Colin finds a place with only one room left, indicating he and Prudencia

BOX OFFICE

Two-hour , two-act play by accomplished, award-winning playwright David Greig.Pre-show musical interlude, post-show reception with the cast, extended by popular demand through May 5: Friday-Sunday, 8 p.m., additional performances, May 2, 7:30 p.m.; May 5, 3 p.m.,Apollinaire Theatre Company of Chelsea Theatre Works, 189 Winnisimmet St., Chelsea: $30; seniors, $25; students, $15. 617-887-2336, apollinaireheatre.com.

must share that room.Colin’s plan is foiled when a soft-spoken, kindly young man lures Prudencia into staying at his nearby B&B instead. He has a well-stocked library, he coos. And it’s located next to the Costco parking lot!

Surprisingly, the second act is lower-keyed. Gone are the raucous revelers, debauchers, and Prudencia’s taunters. Our heroine is in the devil’s grasp, but he’s not the Faustian, frightening, horned, goat-faced, hooved creature. He’s good-looking, mod, soft-spoken and..... lonely.

Portraying the devil, Keith Foster is a textbook, unloved, unwanted creature. He lights up the stage in emotionally charged scenes with talented Apollinaire favorite Becca A. Lewis (Prudencia).What’s going to happen? Is Prudencia really dead and doomed to spend eternity with the devil? Can she enlighten him? Does Colin take an heroic stand to rescue and recapture Prudencia?

The fun tug-of-war and heart-tugging fable will lure you in, too.

Besides Reeves, Foster and Lewis, this talented cast, helmed by Apollinaire’s adventurous, award-winning artistic director, Danielle Fauteux Jacques, includes: Ann Carpenter, Christie Lee Gibson, Francis Xavier Norton, Kody Grassett, Erica Risti, and Slava Tchoul.

Chick Corea and Bela Fleck

By Sheila Barth

On Sunday, April 28, Chelsea’s iconic jazz pianist-composer-bandleader Chick Corea proved you can go home again, and people will cheer you, even if it’s only for one night.

Corea, Chelsea, born-and-raised consummate musician, and nonpareil banjo master Bela Fleck, who lives in Massachusetts (but originally from New York), led a two-act, 2 1/2-hour musical set at the Cabot Theater in downtown Beverly, and their understated, breezy, easygoing appearance was mesmerizing.

Without fanfare, the Grammy Award winning duo stepped on stage. Amid brief comments and mutual admiration camaraderie, they spun their musical magic. Known for their individual versatility performing several musical genres, including jazz and pop standards, bluegrass, rock, flamenco and gospel, Fleck and Corea performed songs from their Latin Grammy Award-winning album, “The Enchantment,” and superlative live set Two they released four years ago, among others.

The duo also turned the tables on their enthusiastic, packed, multigenerational audience, by keeping the house lights on throughout the concert, sweeping us into their performance- a breezy, fun-filled jamfest- without equal. During one of the audience’s standing ovations, Corea pulled out his cell phone and snapped a picture of us.

During their first few numbers, the low-key, dynamic duo, seated in center stage, facing each other and the audience, let their fingers fly swiftly over their instruments, letting the music rip. Their coordination is remarkably flawless, their joy in combining their musicianship, at times whimsical, infectious.

Playing one song after another, with brief, good-natured joking and patter in-between, Corea and Fleck let their fingers fly over the piano keyboard and banjo, their call-and-response timed exquisitely. Besides playing their innovative music, Corea and Fleck performed songs by other groundbreaking jazz artists, including Thelonius Monk. When Corea mentioned his beloved Chelsea hometown, a large contingent of his Chelsea fans responded with a huge, appreciative roar, delighting him.

Nee’ Armando Anthony Corea, Chick’s career started in 1966. Since then, the jazz living legend won Downbeat Hall of Fame and NEA Jazz Master status, gathering 22 Grammys,several nominations and other awards throughout the years.

Fleck injected good-natured humor in his comments, too. Although they appeared relaxed and breezy, Fleck joked he was stressing on stage.

A fan, who’s a musician and speech therapist, said Fleck’s innovative, superlative skills amaze her, playing music not typically performed on the banjo.

And Corea? He’s THE jazz god to my 17-year-old grandson Eli, who composes, arranges, sings, and plays lead guitar in his own band, plays saxophone with a philharmonic jazz band and also his high school’s elite jazz band and regular band. To Eli, Corea and Fleck have no equal, and seeing the trail-blazing duo on the same stage, was inspiring. It was a moment in time he’ll never forget.

Me, too.

State Football Coaches honor Everett’s Anastasia Bessler

Mystic Valley captain receives the Costello Courageous Player Award

By Cary Shuman

Everett’s Anastasia Bessler made state high school football history Sunday as the first-ever female recipient of the Paul Costello Courageous Player Award.

Bessler, a senior at Mystic Valley Regional Charter School, was a captain of the Eagles’ 2018 varsity football team. A two-way starting lineman who was named All-Commonwealth Conference, Bessler was honored by the Massachusetts Football Coaches Association Sunday night at its awards banquet at the DoubleTree Hotel in Westborough.

Bessler was recognized with the prestigious award for “being an inspiration to her team.”

Bob Souza, president of the MHSFCA, told the capacity crowd that Bessler began her football career at the age of five “and has consistently proven that she can compete in a sport typically dominated by male players.”

In her acceptance speech, Bessler thanked the MHSFCA for selecting her for the award.

“I would also like to thank my coaches, my teammates, and most importantly my family, especially my parents [Michael and Andrea Bessler] for always having my back as a female player. Without my family’s support, I would not be here today. If it wasn’t for them, I wouldn’t be playing football.”

Bessler said she began watching the sport when her father, Michael, was coaching football in Everett Pop Warner.

“Once I turned five, I asked my parents if instead of being a cheerleader, could I be a football player,” recalled Bessler. “And my parents were all for it. They were glad, never looked back and allowed me to do what I wanted.”

Bessler played for teams coached by her father in Everett Pop Warner. She also remembered the outstanding instruction she received from other legendary Pop Warner coaches, Peter Forte and Chuck Leo.

She began playing football in seventh grade at Mystic Valley and became a starting player for the freshman and junior varsity teams.

As a junior, Bessler was a starting defensive tackle and offensive guard for the Mystic Valley varsity. She was named a team captain in her senior season.

Bessler, who attended Mystic Valley from kindergarten through twelfth grade, will matriculate at the University of Maine where she will major in Animal Sciences with a minor in Management.

Also an outstanding short-stop for the Mystic Valley varsity since seventh grade, Bessler hopes to play in the Division 1 UMaine program. She has played high school softball for Coaches John Furlong, her hitting coach, and Rebecca Krigman.

In an interview following the award presentation, Bessler again praised her parents for their incredible support from childhood to the present.

“They’re my biggest fans and they have helped me and supported me through everything that I’ve ever wanted to do, no matter what it was.”

Bessler has an older brother, Mattie, and a younger brother, Michael, “my biggest fan who is a freshman at Mystic Valley.”

formation to the Commission (during the licensing process) in 2013, the Commission did find numerous violations of controlling statutes and regulations largely pertaining to a pervasive failure to properly investigate...and to notify the Commission about certain allegations of wrongdoing.

“Specifically, the corporate culture of the founder-led organization led to disparate treatment of the CEO in ways that left the most vulnerable at grave risk. While the Company has made great strides in altering that system, this Commission remains concerned by the past failures and deficiencies,” continued the commissioners’ decision.

Despite being troubled, the MGC indicated that it had decided it was in everyone’s best interest to move forward with the execution of the Region A gaming license in Everett.

“Given our findings, it is now in the interest of the Commonwealth that the gaming licensee move forward in establishing and maintaining a successful gaming establishment in Massachusetts,” read the report from the Commissioners. “One of the key metrics by which we will measure that success will be the overall well-being, safety, and welfare of the employees. A second but equally important metric is the importance of compliance and communication with the regulator. This penalty is designed to guarantee these practices.”

To help ensure future compliance and to punish for past transgressions, the Commission imposes the following penalties and conditions:

- The Commission will assess a $35 million fine on Wynn Resorts.

- Wynn Resorts shall maintain the separation of Chair and CEO for at least the term of the license (15 years).

- At Wynn’s expense, the Commission, as more fully described in the decision, will select an independent monitor to conduct a full review and evaluation of all policies and organizational changes adopted by the Company as part of the Adjudicatory record.

- The Board of Directors shall provide the Commission timely reports of all Directors’ attendance records of both Board and assigned Committee meetings.

Wynn Resorts CEO Matt Maddox was deemed suitable by a majority, but not unanimous, vote of the MGC in its decision, released Tuesday evening. The decision allows him to remain as CEO of the company and the Encore project.

- Wynn MA, LLC shall train all new employees on the Preventing Harassment and Discrimination Policy within three months of opening.

- Any civil or criminal complaints or other actions filed in any court or administrative tribunal against a qualifier shall be reported to the Commission immediately upon notice of the action.

- The Commission will assess a $500,000 fine on Wynn CEO Matthew Maddox.

- The Board of Directors shall engage an executive coach and any additional necessary resources to provide the coaching and training to Mr. Maddox focused on but not limited to (i) leadership development, (ii) effective and appropriate communication for internal, company-wide reporting and messaging, (iii) enhanced sensitivity to and awareness of human resource issues arising in complex workplace environments that, without limitation, relate to diversity (including disability), implicit bias, hostile work environments, inherent coercion, sexual harassment and assault, human trafficking and domestic violence and (iv) team building and meaningful collaboration.

“Ensuring public confidence in the integrity of the gaming industry and the strict oversight of the gaming establishments through rigorous regulation is our principal objective,” said Chair Cathy Judd-Stein in a statement. “Our licensees will be held to the highest standards of compliance, including an obligation to maintain their integrity. The law of Massachusetts affords the Commission significant breadth in our decision making. With that comes an equally significant duty of fairness. We are confident that we have struck the correct balance and met our legal and ethical burdens.”

Elaine Wynn was also deemed suitable by the MGC. Though she wasn’t targeted for questioning as aggressively as Maddox by the Commission, she was one of three that knew of allegations and didn’t report them. She is the only remaining person associated with the company that knew ahead of the 2013 licensing process.

The $35 million fine will be accompanied by a series of conditions, including an independent monitor to review and evaluate the company’s adherence to new and existing policies.

Maddox was levied a personal fine, and his suitability was confirmed by a majority vote that was not unanimous, the MGC said. The fine, they said, came from his “clear failure to require an investigation about a specific spa employee complaint brought to his attention.”

That complaint came from Hotel Operations Director Brian Gullbrants – now an employee of Encore in Everett – and the infamous “sensual massage” requested by Steve Wynn and his new wife in 2013 at the Las Vegas spa.

That said, the Commission did acknowledge that Wynn Resorts had made voluminous changes to their corporate culture and structure – something that was hammered home for hours upon hours by the Wynn team during the MGC hearings.

The Commission concludes “[t]hese changes to the company’s philosophy, training, and operations show a new found commitment and focus on all levels of employees, which combined with the ongoing successful business operations, continue to demonstrate that Wynn is likely to be a successful operator in Everett,” read the decision.

Despite that determination, there was an undercurrent of “troubled” findings repeatedly spelled out in the report. Primarily, that related to information about settlements regarding Steve Wynn’s conduct in the 2013 licensing process.

The report said most of the time, the information withheld came at the advice of legal counsel, but that advice should not have been followed.

“One of the troublesome undercurrents driving this matter is that disclosure of information was often withheld reportedly on the advice of legal counsel, both in-house and outside,” read the report. “All persons involved should have known better.”

That troubling undercurrent also was expressed in the analysis of Maddox’s qualifier status. While Maddox was allowed to remain intact, the decision was not unanimous – meaning that some on the Commission believed he shouldn’t remain and voted against him. However, they found that his shortcomings were due to incompetence rather than suitability issues.

“Mr. Maddox presents a unique case given his longevity with the company, exposure to information pertaining to the alleged wrongdoings and settlements, and current role as CEO,” read the report.

“The Commission concluded that Mr. Maddox has, at critical junctures, demonstrated questionable judgment and other considerable shortcomings in many facets of his responsibilities as CFO, President and CEO,” it continued. “The majority of the Commission determined, however, that these shortcomings bear primarily on his competence, not his suitability...These shortcomings are largely not matters of honesty, integrity, good character or reputation...”

One of the most telling parts of the report was the Pre-amble, where it was apparent the Commission deliberated at length about the matter – and from the gut. In the end, though, it felt it had rendered justice.

“We are confident that we have struck the correct balance and met our legal and ethical burdens,” it read.

Massachusetts State Police receive new helper in comfort dog

The Massachusetts State Police recently acquired an English Black Labrador as the first-ever comfort dog. Luna, who is four-months old and was bred for comfort dog work and donated to the Department, is assigned to the Employee Assistance Unit (EAU).

Trooper Chad Tata of the EAU is Luna's handler. Luna lives with Trooper Tata and his family and goes to work with him every day. She will be used to reduce stress and promote wellness and healing for first responders and their families after a traumatic incident, and eventually Luna will also be working with civilian victims and survivors. A gentle, docile and playful dog, she brings a comforting presence and commands smiles in any room she enters.

"Luna is going to be a great asset to our unit and to the Department," Trooper Tata said.

Trooper Tata is training with Luna one-on-one every day; she will eventually receive certification as a therapy dog through the Alliance of Therapy Dogs.

"She is part of my day-to-day routine, as well as responding to all my call outs," Trooper Tata said. "She will attend all debriefings that I am invited to, as well as coming with me to the office. It is important to get Luna around as many people on our job as possible."

Eventually, Luna will be able to travel to incidents with Trooper Tata not only throughout Massachusetts, but also out-of-state to assist at mass casualty incidents as needed.

Luna responded to her first call-out last week with Trooper Tata, assisting Springfield Police Officers who were involved in responding to an altercation outside a nightclub on April 14. One of the officers was shot twice and survived. Luna's calming presence was a great benefit to the officers involved in the incident.

"Luna is the first ever comfort dog to serve with the Massachusetts State Police and she is a welcome addition to our fundamental mission — to help people in need," said Colonel Kerry Gilpin. "We know all too well the devastating effects of traumatic stress, and we are fortunate to have Luna available to first responders, their family members, and other victims in need of support."

Lt. James Massari, commander of the EAU, noted that high stress causes the body to increase production of cortisol, a hormone. Increased cortisol can cause a host of serious health problems. Comfort dogs have been show to lower cortisol levels.

Luna was generously donated to the State Police by Peggi and David Brogan of Boonefield Labradors in Rindge, NH. Boonefield Labradors are known for their calm temperaments and sweet personalities.

The Massachusetts State Police recently acquired Luna, an English Black Labrador, as the first-ever comfort dog.
